Foreword

It is indeed fitting nowadays that some adequate record be made of the widening interest in student activities at Trinity College. Such has been our assigned task, and to this end we have labored. We have no doubt fallen far short of our mark, and it is with fear and trembling that we submit this, the work of our hands. It is our hope, however, that at some time in future years, you, gentle reader, may have an occasion to open this book again, and that by its help you may be able to slip away from the toils and cares and worries of your business for an hour or so and to drift back to those pleasant and precious days when you were a student; and as you turn its pages, may you once more visualize "old familiar sights of ours," may you hear again the clarion summons of the chapel bell, may you sit again behind your worn study table in Epworth Hall, and may you look once more into smiling, carefree faces that have grown dim with the passing years.

To
William Preston Few, Ph.D., LL.D.

Our most worthy and esteemed President and Friend, who has won the admiration
and confidence of every Trinity student by his tireless energy and zeal in behalf of this institution,
The CHANTICLEER for 1921 is respectfully dedicated

Pompeys Ducklegs

By SAMUEL FOX MORDECAI

(Written for his granddaughter)

"Pompey," "Pomp," and "Pompey dear!"
How many Pompeys have we here?
There's Pompey "young",
And Pompey "old"
"Pomp the playful"
'N "Pomp the Scold",
Pompey "Little"
And Pompey "Big"
Pomp the "Neat"
And "Pomp the Pig",
Pompey "Long" and Pompey "Short"
'N Pomp "Who does what he hadn't ought";
Pompey "Red" and Pompey "Brown"
And Pomp that scratches in the ground,
Pomp that catches rats and mice
And Pomp that looks like nigger's "fice",
Pomp who cusses and chews tobacco
'N Pomp who gnaws chips, bones, and cracker,
Pompey "Big" and Pompey "Small"
Pompey "Short" and Pompey "Tall",
"Old Badness Pomp" who steals folks' dolls,
'N "Young Goodness Pomp" who sleeps and lolls,
"Senior Pomp" who 'bacco chews
'N "Junior Pomp" who totes off shoes,
"Pompey Pappy" "Pompey Son"
—"Pompey Duck" fits either one—
"Pompey Duck", the pedigreed,
'N Pomp the mongrel and half-breed,
Pomp that chases rats and moles
'N Pomp that chews on old leather soles,
More than that, as I've been told,
There's Pompey "Cautious" and Pomp "The Bold",
'N Pomp that runs like the very dickens,
When he sees a hen that's got young chickens,
Pomp that chases every cat
And Pomp that's got more sense than that,
Pomp the singing epicure
'N Pomp the son of a gun—and more,
Pomp that never hints or begs,
But when he's hungry takes fresh eggs,
But no matter how many Pomps there be
    Regardless of age, size, pedigree—
They are each and every one you see,
"Dear Little Pompey Duck" to me

GILREATH GILDEROY ADAMS
MOORESVILLE, N. C.

Rutherford College (1, 2), Ministerial Band, Chairman Extension Committee (3), Vice-President (4), Student Volunteer Band, Vice-President (4); Columbian Literary Society, Chaplain (3), Business Committee (3); Treasurer (4), Y.N.C.A. Cabinet (4), Folk Lore Society, Ex-Service Club

If in later years, Adams as a minister can make as good collections as he did as Treasurer of Columbian Literary Society, we are sure that he will be made a bishop. A man with a steady purpose which wins words of approval is Adams.

ALEX ELIJAH ASHE
SYLVA, N. C.

Class Baseball (2, 3, 4), Class Football (3, 4), Class Basketball (4); Mountain Boomers' Club, Columbian Literary Society.

Alex is one of the two. He has for the past four years distinguished himself in various forms of scholastic activity. We learned to know him best by his superior service in the dope shop, but in his Junior and Senior days we are all inclined to think that West Durham Pharmacy has become much more attractive to him than the College store.

JAMES ELISHA ASHE
SYLVA, N. C.

Class Baseball (1, 3, 4); Class Basketball (3); Class Football (3); Mountain Boomers' Club; Columbian Literary Society.

To many of his friends Jim might just as well be labeled, "Alex, Duplicate". Jim is a great fellow. He has given his class and his College his best on the gridiron and the diamond and in the dope shop. And for all we know, and possibly for all she knows, he may have taken a much larger share in his twin Brother's West Durham activities than anyone suspects. He is one of those very few who possess the maximum of College spirit—a true son to his Alma Mater. And most any student can point with pride to the fact that Jimmie Ashe is one of his friends.

LUTHER WESLEY BARNHARDT
CONCORD, N. C.

Historical Society, Vice-President (4); Class Baseball (1); Varsity Baseball (1, 3); Class Track (3); Varsity Track (3, 4); Y.M.C.A.

No one knows what force impelled Barnhardt to forsake the plow and come to College. Something, however, must have influenced him strongly for he has certainly made a name for himself. His record has been particularly bright on the hundred yard dash, on the baseball field, and on Education and Psychology classes. There is no one who knows quite so much history as he and Tubby and Lap. We certainly hope that, once away from the old mule, Barnhardt will not revert to the primitive, but that he will continue in his talented channels, which will ultimately lead him on the one hand to the Olympic Games, and on the other to a Ph.D.

THE CHANTS

ELLA MAY BEAVERS

Durham, N. C.

Durham High School, Durham High School Club, Secretary-Treasurer (4), Glee Club.

Ella May has missed her calling we firmly believe. Dr. Cranford predicts old-maidship for her, and we wonder if such will be the case because she argues so cleverly. She never gives up if convinced, and holds that "a woman convinced against her will is of the same opinion still." It makes no difference what Ella May chooses for her life's calling. We know that she will find success because her friendly manner and absolute frankness are certain to bring results other than friends.

CHASE HOWARD BENSON, Φ B K

SWAN QUARTER, N. C.

Sladesville High School, Columbian Literary Society, Executive Committee (3), Freshman and Sophomore Honors, Interclass Relay (3, 4), Class Track (4), ROTC, Sandfiddlers' Club, 9910, Y.M.C.A.

Benson has never shown any insatiable craving for the limelight, but he has more than upheld his side of the scholastic standing, as his membership to the 9910 and the Phi Beta Kappa will amply testify. He has done much for '21, and his classmates are justly proud of him. He arrived in the fall of 1917, alone and unlabeled, but since then he has demonstrated that it is entirely unnecessary for him to take any course in broken doses. It will not be a surprise to any of us to find him settled after this year in some larger quarter than Swan Quarter.

JOSEPH WEYMOUR BRADY
DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School Club, First Sergeant R.O.T.C.;
Camp Lee R.O.T.C.; Class Baseball (3, 4); Class
Basketball (3,4), Captain (4); Varsity Basketball (4).

Joe is another product of Durham, and upholds the traits of D.H.S.—steady labor.
He shines in Economics (?), and pulls cords with Tubby. For two years he confined his athletics to walking, but since he has become a Senior, he has blossomed forth in lurid glory on the basketball floor.

CANEY EDWARD BUCKNER
ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Weaver College (1, 2); Weaver College Club, President (4); Mountain Boomers' Club, Historical Society, Folk Lore Society, Columbian Literary Society, Clerk of Tribunal (3), Secretary (4);
Alternate Intersociety Debate (4), Class Relay (3),
Class Track (4), Class Baseball (3, 4), Y.M.C.A.

Those fellows from the West are of the stuff from which men are made, as Buckner soon demonstrated when he joined '21, coming from Weaver. Judging from the photograph which hangs over Buckner's typewriting desk, he is a man of settled affections.

THE CLASS

CHARLES WARE BUNDY
Monroe, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club, Ex-Service Club, A. E. F. Club, Columbian Literary Society, Chief Tribune (4), Vice-President (4), Historical Society, Class Baseball (2), Chronicle Staff (2), CHANTICLEER Staff (4), Y. M. C. A.

Young ladies and gentlemen, it gives us great pleasure to present, Charlie, the man who spent twelve months in France without falling for the mademoiselles. Surviving this ordeal, he returned to Trinity and entered the class of '21. His favorite pastime is writing term papers. As Assistant Manager he has done good work in getting out this CHANTICLEER.

JAMES SCOTT BURCH, JR.
Durham, N. C.

Durham High School, Durham High School Club, Physics Club, Engineering Club, Scrub Faculty, Class Basketball (3, 4).

Jim is perfectly at home with a rod (but no reel). He caters to surveying and physics. His latest plans are for a railroad or some other means of connection with Saturn—having conquered the elements of physics involved and knowing that a straight line may get there. Luck to you, Jim! Although he has been hard at work on plans for bridging the Pacific Ocean and cutting a canal along the crest of the Rocky Mountains, he has found time to become very proficient in basketball in the last two years, and anybody who played against him in the class series will testify as to his ability to spank 'em in.

CHARLES FISHER CARROLL, JR.
WARSAW, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club, Hesperian Literary Society; Duplin County Club, Historical Society; Sandfiddlers' Club, Class Tennis (1); Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4); Representative on Athletic Council (4); Y.M.C.A.; "T" Club, Tombs, Beta Omega Sigma

Carroll has figured strongly in the pitcher's box, and has caused the downfall of many .300 batters. He is more at home in the diamond than he would be handling a diamond. He is "hail fellow well met", and he enjoys the good old bull. But "Valor" doesn't ring true to his name when it comes to the ladies, so the boys say. Outside of performances on the athletic fields, he has threaded his college career chiefly along "the cool sequestered vales of life." His big virtue is keeping his mouth closed and going about his own business, which is a very unusual thing for a man who has acquired so many enviable honors.

EARNEST DENNING CAVENAUGH, ST
WILMINGTON, N. C.

Historical Society, Ex-Service Men's Club, New Hanover County Club, Y.M.C.A.

Here is old Cav, who in his own phraseology "hasn't got any honors and doesn't want any". He is a wise bird. Cavenaugh spent about a year in Paree, and since that time he can't talk about anything except the time when he is going back and live the rest of his life there. His greatest ambition is to be a musician, and all his singing, although he says that he can't carry a tune in a bucket with the lid on tight, runs to operatic arias; however it is no unusual thing for one to pass by his door at midnight and hear him warbling melodiously, "Quand Madelon vient nous servir a bois." We have concluded, therefore, that he has left his love in Avalon or somewhere else, and at sometime or other he anticipates going back. Cav "philanthrophaly" adopted Tub last year, but during recent examinations a rupture was occasioned in the family over a History term paper. It was very tragic to all who knew about it. It is said that even O T broke down and cried.

Forty-eight

THE
EMMA LEGRAND CHAFFIN
MOCKSVILLE, N. C.

Athena Literary Society, Marshal (2), Secretary (4)
Women's Athletic Association

Emma is a politician of the deepest dye, and we are expecting her to be a candidate for some public office in the near future. She is a co-ed who never "hops crips", but searches the catalogue for the hardest of subjects. We have never seen her studying, and, therefore, we have decided that she surely must have been born bright.

WASHINGTON LEE CHANDLER, ΣΧ
LAKE CITY, S. C.

Class Tennis (2); Class Baseball (3); Varsity Baseball (3, 4); "T" Club, South Carolina Club, President (4); Columbian Literary Society; Red Friars Y.M.C.A.

Chandler will surprise you. He gathers speed with distance. He was unheard of as a baseball player for two years, but take a look at his record for 1920. He hits them all, and he catches them all, even if he has to fall on his nose to do so. It is rumored that he is giving a course in Education to Professor Lowery.

THE CHANTICLEER

EUGENE CHESSON
DURHAM, N. C.

Trinity Park School; Trinity Park School Club, Hesperian Literary Society, Ministerial Band, Chairman Extension Committee (4), Student Volunteer Band, Secretary-Treasurer (2), President (3); Student Volunteer Union of North Carolina for Foreign Missions, Treasurer (3, 4); Y.M.C.A. Delegate Blue Ridge Convention (2), Cabinet Member (4); Classical Club, Secretary (3); Sandfiddlers' Club.

Eugene has made a good record in his studies since he became a Freshman, and he has found time to manage a boarding house in his past two years of College life. He is a great hustler—with books, with knives and forks, and with the ladies. With such elaborate preparation, there is no reason why he should not make himself famous.

HENRY PURYEAR COLE, K A
RALEIGH, N. C.

Woodberry Forest School, Raleigh High School, Class Basketball (1); Varsity Basketball (1, 2, 3), Captain (2); Class Baseball (1); Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 3); Varsity Track (2, 3, 4), Captain (4); Class Football (3); Representative on Athletic Council (1, 3); Class Vice-President (2); Class President (4); Assistant Business Manager CHANTICLEER (3); Tied Intercollegiate High Jump Record (3), Wake County Club, Navy Club, Hades Club, Vice-President Greater Trinity Club (4); Y.M.C.A. Entertainment Committee (4), Red Friars; Tombs; Y.M.C.A.

Here we have Cole, alternately from Raleigh and Broadway. It requires an amazing amount of space to enumerate his many honors in basketball, baseball, track, and other phases of student activity. Behold his newest quest—a very strong hair tonic. Cole has one record of which he has a right to be proud. It is said that he never has bought a pack of cigarettes since he entered College—and yet all the time he has smoked his favorite brand. He forgot to mention one honor in his above list. He made Varsity line-shooters squad in his Senior year, but we think that he accomplished this chiefly by booting Captain Roy Giles, who had already made his letter and two stars in his popular form of student activity.

MARY LOUISE COLE DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School Durham High School Club

Here is a girl who is a happy combination of seriousness and fun. She is a good pal, as is shown by her host of ardent admirers. Mary is a born musician, and we hope that some day her name will be flashed on Broadway as the chief attraction in Grand Opera. She may well look forward to a successful career and a life made happy by her many friends.

CHARLES CECIL CORNWELL, II K Φ DALLAS, N. C.

Dallas High School, Wofford (2), Columbian Literary Society, Class Tennis (1), Varsity Tennis (3, 4), "T" Club, Gaston County Club, President (4), Tombs, Theta Nu Epsilon, Red Friars, 9010

"C<sup>2</sup>" has been a loyal member of '21 for three years; however he spent the winter of 1918-19 in Spartanburg, and came back to Trinity the next fall six inches taller. It is a revelation to see him play tennis. He is perfectly at home with any kind of racket; especially the Dreadnaught Driver and that racket turned out by cuspidor rollers. We would also advise everybody to hear him laugh. It costs nothing, is always available and invariably chases the blues.

EMMA ELIZABETH DAVIS, Z T A
ALBEMARLE, N. C.

Chowan College, University of Richmond, Student Council (3), Vice-President (4); Editor Exchange Department of Archae (4), Hades Club, Stanly County Club, Women's Athletic Association, Y.W.C.A.

Emma left us one year, but, like the Prodigal son, she had to return; and we immediately gave her many responsible offices which she has successfully filled. She looks like a vamp, doesn't she? She denies the accusation, however, and we cannot prove how many men have fallen before those eyes, but we can vouch for the fact that she has captivated all the co-eds by her attractive manner.

HARVEY LAUDIS DAVIS
HEMP, N. C.

Elise High School, Ministerial Band, Chairman Program Committee (4), Columbian Literary Society, Associate Tribune (3), Business Committee (3, 4), Classical Club, Y.M.C.A.

Davis lives according to the old adage that actions speak louder than words, and his college career should stand as an example to those who follow him. We can wish him little better than to live hereafter in the manner he has done while we have known him—a staunch Methodist and a man who is not afraid to stand by his own convictions.

LEONIDAS McFERRIN DRAPER, Σ γ WARRENTON, N. C.

Shenandoah Collegiate Institute; Hesperian Literary Society, Chairman Executive Committee (3); Class Vice-President (3), Class Track (1), Captain (1), Glee Club (3), Manager (3), President Trinity Musical Clubs (4), Assistant Business Manager Archive (3); Business Manager CHANTICLEER (4); Assistant Lecturer in Chemistry (4), Scrub Faculty (4), Historical Society, Biological Club; Hades Club, Red Friars, Y.M.C.A. Cabinet (1, 3).

"—and just as he did that,—by the way, did I tell you about what Kirby did last night,—look yonder—". And so it goes on and on forever. Leon is a great wire-puller, and it is a pity that such an exceptional politician should be warped into a bum doctor. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays are his lucky days; that is, at the post office. His thoughts, however, far outrun the days between, and it is nothing unusual for one to find him in the midst of a day dream, murmuring softly and sweetly and gently and hopefully. "J - - - - M - - - -". At all other times he is a bundle of nerves, and his time is fully taken up with his Chem courses, the CHANTICLEER, the Glee Club, and his room-mate.

ROBERT TAYLOR DUNSTAN, Φ Β Κ WINDSOR, N. C.

Windsor High School, Hesperian Literary Society, Class Track (3, 4), R. O. T. C. (3), Folk Lore Society, French Club, Treasurer (3), President (4), Assistant in Spanish (3), 0510.

Dunstan is another member of '21 who has surprised everybody in his Senior year. He waited till last December before he decided to exhibit his poetic talent, and when we read his lyrics in the Archive, we could hardly believe that our own R. T. was the author. But once started, Dunstan has kept at his task faithfully, and now he has made a place for himself beside Prof. Spence, John Small, and other famous American poets. Dunstan is a popular man and his friends are of the best.

LEE BALLINGER DURHAM, A Z Φ
SILER CITY, N. C.

Siler City High School, Hesperian Literary Society, Marshal (3); Class Baseball (2, 3); Commencement Marshal, Assistant Manager Tennis (1); "T" Club; Manager Tennis (4); Chronicle Board (3, 4), Biological Club, Assistant Secretary (4), Student Life Committee (3), Chatham County Club, Vice-President (4); R O T C., Sergeant Major Battalion (3), Y.M.C.A.

Lee is a quiet sort of a chap who never fails to make friends. He always gets there, and, therefore, he can be depended upon to produce the goods at the psychological moment. A glance at the responsible positions he has held will convince anybody that his classmates have not failed to take advantage of his abilities. We never heard him say anything about the ladies, pro or con, but, "Still water runs deep." Lee is also a poet, and has spent a large part of his time this year in composing stanzas that have won for him the admiration of all readers of the Archive.

RENO KIRBY FARRINGTON
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Leaksville-Spray Institute; Weaver College (1); Weaver College Club, Hesperian Literary Society; Hades Club, Glee Club (3, 4), Science Club, Biological Club; William Howell Pegram Chemistry Club, Serub Faculty, CHANTICLEER Staff (3); Business Manager, Archive (4); Assistant Instructor in Biology (4), College Quartette (2, 3, 4); Y.M.C.A.

Kirby, or "Curbie" (as the girls write him), is a super-diplomat, and he has a very practical way of using his talent to his own advantage. He made one mistake in this work, however, when he decided that he would annex the honor of being business manager of the Archive. He had a remarkably easy time getting fellows to vote for him, and he carried the election easily; and now his duties as manager have caused him to flunk on Chem 5 and Embryology! He is a strong member of the sachet brigade, and it is said that upon one occasion he stated that he knew of no girl who had a reserve so invulnerable that he could not by careful scrutiny detect in it some essential weakness, provided he scrutinized through his tortoise-shells

DOCTOR THOMAS FERRELL
DURHAM, N. C.

AEF Club

Ferrell, coupled with the fact that he is Durhamite, comes from a line noted for forensic achievements. He is strictly a product of Durham, and upholds the trait which runs through the proteges of Durham High School—that of hard, earnest labor. We do not see so much of him on the campus because as soon as his classes are over, he hurries about his own business. The lure of the bull feast seems to have little hold upon him, but those of us who have learned to know him well will testify that he is as good as they are made.

GEORGE WASHINGTON FERRELL
DURHAM, N. C.

Here we have another staunch son of Durham, who has upheld the honor of his town at Trinity. He has occupied the major portion of time at the College with killing the profs. and has left the bright lights for the more ambitious. We have it on good authority that he shines on Economics, however, and that he has no objection to pulling cords with Tubby, either of which accomplishments are more than a great many of us can boast of. Although he has not been such a regular attendant at our regular bull feasts, his consistent work has stamped him as being a true student.

"Who does his task from day to day,

HENRY ELBERT FISHER, A Z Φ, Φ B K

Gatesville High School, Freshman and Sophomore Honors, Sophomore and Junior Scholarships, Class Relay (1), Hesperian Literary Society, Treasurer (2), Chairman Executive Committee (3), Auditor (3), President (4), Critic (4); Freshman Debater's Medal, General Debater's Medal (2); Intersociety Debate (1); Trinity-Swarthmore Debate (1, 2, 4); Trinity-Emory Debate (3); Trinity-Richmond (4); Debate Council (2, 3, 4); Recording Secretary (2, 4); Chronicle Staff (2); Chronicle Board (3, 4); Assistant to College Registrar (2, 3, 4); Stenographers' Club, Hades Club, Wake County Club, Corresponding-Secretary Greater Trinity Club (4); Y.M.C.A., Treasurer (3), Chairman Finance Committee (3); Blue Ridge Delegation (4); Debater's "T", 1919, Tau Kappa Alpha.

Henry has a convincing line, which he turned to selling books a few summers ago. The formula, he says, is B U L<sub>2</sub>, which in practical terms is nothing more than the good old adage, "Think little and talk much." The same line has worked fairly well with the Profs at Trinity, for Henry is an honor man. If you want the latest dope on anything that happens at faculty meetings, ask Henry or John Love,—they know.

"I will speak, though Hell itself should gape and bid me hold my peace."

Littleton College; Athena Literary Society, Vice-President (4), Current Events Club, French Circle, Folk Lore Society, Sandfiddlers' Club, Eko-I.; Y.W.C.A., Vice-President (4), New Hanover County Club.

"There is no jewel in the world
So valuable and chaste as virtuous woman."

Josie came to us in her Junior year from Littleton College. She is good—almost too good. The rest of us look at her in awe and admiration and wonder how she manages to keep good in spite of the trying offices she has had to fill. But Josie is not only good; she is smart. In her we find those qualities that are most sought after and are so seemingly unattainable.

"Do you not know that I am a woman? When I think, I must speak".

And so is Tiny admired all the more because she speaks just what she thinks. One would think after talking with Tiny that she has been sent out as an ambassador from the Philosophy Department. We understand that her room-mates always receive full benefit of Dr. Cranford's lectures, so interested is Tiny—By the way, why call her "Tiny?" Do you think it is exactly descriptive?

HENDRIX RONE GEDDIE
ROSE HILL, N. C.

Class Baseball (2, 4); Class Basketball (3, 4); Hesperian Literary Society; Historical Society; Hades Club; Sandfiddlers' Club; Y.M.C.A.

"A heart of sunshine that would fain o'er-run."

Shorty is another blossom from Rose Hill. Come what may, he grins from year to year, "for he's a jolly good fellow." Tennis is attractive to him, perhaps because of the courts' proximity to the Shack, and his famous basketball playing resembles something like a cannon ball gone crazy. No hard luck has ever taken that well-known grin from his face or compromised in the slightest, his envied good-natured way of going about his work. Truly, he has a lovable disposition. He is the incarnation of eternal youth—the kind that never grows old.

ROBERT THEODORE GILES
HILLSBORO, N. C.

Durham High School; Class Basketball (3), Captain (3), Class Football (3), Class Track (4); Class Tennis (4), Varsity Basketball (2, 3, 4); Hesperian Literary Society; Durham High School Club, "T" Club, Y.M.C.A.

Bob is in everything but love! He has tackled politics, economics—which is about the same—The Orpheum, and athletics. He is noted for his most frequent saying, "Shoot a nickel", and the town he is from, Hillsboro. He is always in a good humor—with no thought to sorrow. Basketball is his chief occupation; however he has managed to crowd in a few courses, and the grades he draws on them are surprisingly large, somehow, someway. If Hillsboro resembled Bob more than it does Hillsboro, probably its citizens would not have to depend on above-speed-limit taxes collected from Trinity students to pay their cop.

ROY WILLIAM GILES, Σ Φ Ε
MARION, N. C.

Rutherford College; Oak Ridge Institute; Class Baseball (1, 2), Class Track (1, 2, 3, 4), Class Relay (2, 4), Captain (4); Varsity Track (2, 3, 4); Commencement Marshal (1); Hesperian Literary Society, Secretary (2); Executive Committee (3); Historical Society; Cheer Leader (2); Chief Rooter (3, 4), Glee Club (2, 3), Assistant Manager (3), Assistant Baseball Manager (3); Pan-Hellenic Council (4); Pi Mu Kappa; Tombs, Theta Nu Epsilon, Y.M.C.A.

Old Man Roy Giles has a pretty hard time—"How was that, now?"). It has taken him about seven years to finish with a diploma—"What did I say?"). Of course, he stayed in the army about three years, possibly to be able to enter with a better class—"Now, what did I say?"). He's a handsome boy. That is shown by the fact that this is a bad picture of him. He is very, very popular with the girls. They all like the kind of tobacco he chews when he goes to see them—"How was that, now?"). He likes them too, and when a snow comes, he "rolls" "those suckers", but usually you can find him shooting for the line whenever the ground can be seen.

WILLIAM PAUL GLASS KANNAPOLIS, N. C.

Concord High School, Historical Society, Ex-Ser-vice Men's Club, Hesperian Literary Society, Class Track (1), Class Baseball (2, 3), Folk Lore Society, Y.N.C.A.

Glass has prefaced his debut in the busi-ness world by taking hold of the Athletic Pressing Club and showing students how it is possible to go to Trinity College and save money on the deal. He thereby wrecked a theory to the contrary which had attained wide popularity and universal acceptance, and at the same time he made for himself a name as being a consistent worker. He also lifted the Pressing Club above the reputation it had for being an "organization" solely for the purpose of graft.

CLAUD GRIGG LAWNDALE, N. C.

Class Basketball (3, 4); Columbian Literary Society, Business Committee (3), Vice-President (4), Inter-society Debate (4); Trinity-Richmond Debate (4); Class Vice-President (4), Acacia Club

Cladius is a man who has known the feel of one of Uncle Sam's decks beneath his feet, the smile of certain select ones of the fair sex, and the approbation of the profs. Always considerate of the feelings of others, Grigg is a highly valued friend. As a de-bater he is unexcelled, and his theological arguments with Professor Cannon on Bible 3 are enough to turn anybody pagan. He also smokes the oldest pipe in the Senior Class since Farrington broke his.

Hesperian Literary Society; Class Tennis (1), Varsity Tennis (3, 4); "T" Club, Tombs; Beta Omega Sigma; Theta Nu Epsilon, Y.M.C.A.

Charlie has a fine schedule. He starts studying hard at twelve o'clock P.M., and by twelve-fifteen he is sound asleep in bed. According to Roy Giles, he won't go to bed and he won't get up. We would like to say that what he lacks in stature is made up in brains. He has been an ideal fellow at Trinity, but that may be due to the limited time he has spent here. He loves tennis and pool, and is equally proficient in both forms of exercise. It is certainly too bad that he failed to go out to gym for physical exercise, and thereby busted the course. But they'll probably give the same course next year.

Committee, Tombs, Tau Kappa Alpha, 0010

Behold here a man who combines the glee club, intercollegiate debating, and scholarship attainments in a manner seldom excelled. And yet with all these honors, he is not weighed down with the cares of the world, but always has a hearty "Hello" for every man on the park. If you are ever feeling down and out, hunt up Harmon and get him to laugh once for you. His laugh is such a jolly, spontaneous outburst that no one can hear it and not feel better for it. For four years it has resounded through the rooms and about the campus of Trinity. Would that we knew more men like Dewey!

"Nick" among the boys, and "Cleo" among the ladies are his nick names. We have in Hath a well rounded combination—the excellent student, the star athlete, the good fellow, and the vampire among the women. He has the honors—both scholastic and athletic, and he has made practically every organization on the campus. When he starts anything he sticks to it with almost superhuman tenacity. Lye has nothing on him in concentration. During the past two years he made his debut at the Shack, and has since been back once or twice. The problem is, why?

"Stem" is everybody's friend, and justly so. As he is being a man's man, and is majoring in Economics, he hasn't time for such follies as the Fraushack. He has acquired a great many honors during his four years with us, as may be seen by looking at his lengthy list above. We happen to have it on pretty reliable authority that he is fairly adept in handling "home brew"—in both distilling and killing. Who'd have thought it! But possibly he got his training when discharging his duties as Chairman of the Y.M.C.A. Entertainment Committee.

Sam is an aspirant for honors in the oratorical and debating world, and he has landed quite a few plums. As a student he rivals the elect brilliants, but occasionally he takes recreation from his intellectual labors by telling jokes to Dr. Brown or by smoking a strong cigar. As a general rule he does not believe much in wine, women, and song, but puts his trust in a good line and a knowledge of facts. Note results.

Greensboro College for Women (1, 2), CHANTICLEER Staff, Art Editor (4); Y. W. C. A. Cabinet (4); Athena Literary Society, Sandfiddlers' Club; Hades Club, Delta Phi Rho Alpha, Eko-L.

Lelia is without a doubt the most original girl in her Class, and not infrequently her very originality leads her into other perplexing situations. It is then that good common-sense and genuine dependability come to her rescue, and we again see her on the highway to success. She has staunch friends who assist her and care for her as though she were here for the purpose of affording them occupations. She loves long walks and street-car rides—when there is no gas in the Ford sedan. Here's to Lelia Humble! May she always be happy and be able to keep up with her "Bills".

DONALD WOOLEY KANOY TROY, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club, Columbian Literary Society, Ministerial Band, Golf Club, Class Track (3); Assistant Business Manager Chronicle (2, 3); Classical Club, Treasurer (4); Folk Lore Society, Historical Society, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge Delegate (3).

Many a Freshman gasps to think what would happen in case Kanoy failed to file the themes handed in. But Kanoy does his work with "neatness and dispatch". On the links he is a shark, and if reports are true, we would not be surprised to hear Bobby Jones ask for a handicap the first time he goes around with D. W. Between filing themes and driving golf balls he has managed to get in enough courses for a diploma. He has passed all of them creditably by earnest effort and hard work—Did I say all? Yes, all save one. He didn't have to study English; he passed that on the links.

HUGH TALMADGE LEFLER COOLEEMEE, N. C.

Weaver College (1, 2); Columbian Literary Society, Corresponding Secretary (3), Executive Committee (4), Business Committee (4), Alternate Intersociety Debate (3); Intersociety Debate (4); Trinity-Emory Debate (4); Class Track (3, 4); Class Tennis (3, 4); Captain (4); Historical Society; Weaver College Club, Y. M. C. A.

Coming from Weaver College in 1919, Hugh was a valuable addition to the Class of '21. He is equally good on the track, on the tennis court, in the classroom, and on the rostrum. He has put to flight the hopes of certain other colleges in the debating world, and has brought home the laurels for his Alma Mater. In spite of his many engaging forms of student activity, Hugh has found time for a large number of engaging courses, and he consequently spends a great part of his time in kidding the pros along. English is his hobby, and we once heard him quote from Dryden to express his opinion of women: "A dear, damned, inconstant sex."

JULIAN DOUGLAS LEWIS, II K A, Σ Υ
WHITEVILLE, N. C.

Whiteville High School, Hesperian Literary Society, Marshal (1), Auditor (3), Secretary (3), Vice-President (4), Critic (4); President (4), Commencement Marshal (2); Class Baseball (1, 3), Assistant Manager Tennis (1, 2, 3); Manager Tennis (4), Associate Editor CHANTICLEER (3), Editor Wayside Wares Department of the Archite (4), Sandfiddlers' Club, President (3); Recording-Secretary Greater Trinity Club (4), Classical Club, Y M C A, Tombs, Theta Nu Epsilon, Red Friars

Red started with the class of '20, marked time for a year, and then continued his triumphant march toward diploma and tennis managership with the good Class of '21. In Hesperia he has been constantly in touch with problems of vital interest, and we wonder at his amazing diplomacy because he is able to express himself emphatically and all the time enjoy the love and fellowship and brotherhood of all members concerned. His pleasant relations with the various English and Science professors and with the athletic directors have been very gratifying, in view of the hard work which he has done for his honors. And, speaking of honors,—he has them all

JOHN OGLESBY LONG
DULAH, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club, Columbian Literary Society, Clerk Tribunal (1, 2), Recording-Secretary (1, 2), Chaplain (3, 4); Sandfiddlers' Club, Ministerial Band, Choir Leader (2) Program Committee (3, 4); Folk Lore Society; Y M C A Religious Committee (3); Pastor Pelham Church (2, 3); Pastor Orange Circuit (4)

And here we have the Beau Brummel of the ministerial band. Oglesby has firm convictions, and he is swayed by none other than his own, even when it comes to falling in with moves that Dr. Few and other celebrities think are bordering on the radical. What's a class or two when principle is involved? We once heard that Oglesby raced to his room between classes to slick his hair, and we know that he has occasionally journeyed to Danville on other than ministerial duties. We once heard of him winning a bet, but our bet is that he will make the Eastern Conference a strong man.

CARL EDWARD MABRY
NORWOOD, N. C.

Weaver College (1), Columbian Literary Society, Clerk of Tribunal (2), Business Committee (3-4), Chairman Executive Committee (4), Class Track (2); Class Baseball (3, 4); Class Football (3, 4), Captain (4); Ministerial Band, Historical Society, Stanly County Club, Classical Club, Weaver College Club, Vice-President (4), Varsity Football (4), Y.M.C.A.

Carl is one of the men who has put Norwood, and incidentally Stanly County, on the map. He found after a year's trial that Weaver was too small a place for him, and, therefore, he has settled at Trinity for the past three years, all of which is entirely in Trinity's favor. The first thing one concludes from his picture is that he is a gentleman, and in that respect his looks do not belie his character. Carl is not heard from so often as some of us and not seen so much as many of us, but he has been heart and soul with his Alma Mater since he cast his lot here. His record on the gridiron has been especially brilliant, as any one will tell you who saw him tear through that Wofford line last Thanksgiving, and we will venture to say that when he starts out on his active duties as a minister, old Satan is in for a pretty tough time.

HELEN McCRRARY, A. D. II
LEXINGTON, N. C.

Greensboro College (1, 2); Literary Editor of the Archive; Athena Literary Society, Glee Club, Citizenship Club, Eko-L, Delta Phi Rho, Alpha, Y. W. C. A.

"Has the bell rung?" "Where's the lesson?" "What time is it?" If we hear these questions, there is no doubt as to who the questioner is—Helen, of course. She is a rather inconsistent combination of beauty, brilliancy, and absentmindedness. Her capacity mentally is large, and her capacity physically is larger—ask the dope shop man; he knows more about Helen's real capacity than anyone else. Her favorite pastime is vamping the baby Freshmen and the various English Professors, and however slim her method of camouflage may be, she certainly gets results. But for all of this she is an ideal Senior and a wonderfully delightful friend to those who are so fortunate to be acquainted with her.

FRED NELSON McGRANNAHAN, A Z Φ
DURHAM, N. C.

Varsity Track (1, 2, 3), Class Football (3), Captain (3); Varsity Football (3), "T" Club, Tombs.

Since he has been a student with us, Mac has divided his activities between playing football, pole vaulting, studying, and "socialing". To him belongs the very distinctive honor of making Trinity's first intercollegiate touchdown after football was reinstated. He got a good many others during the season and opposing halfbacks learned to fear him. We all know that he was doing it all for Trinity, but we are not sure that his inspiration may be attributed to an extremely interested spectator on the sidelines in whose company he may be seen at almost any time except during a game. Mac evidently believes that "faint heart ne'er won fair lady". His heart is certainly strong on the gridiron; we have no reason to believe that it is not in the parlor.

WOODLEY CLOSS MERRITT
ROWLAND, N. C.

Norlina High School, Columbian Literary Society, Class Track (1, 2), Class Baseball (3); R.O.T.C. Second Lieutenant (3); Glee Club (3, 4), College Quartette (3, 4), Ministerial Band, Hades Club, Y.M.C.A.

Woodley is another of our class poets; however all his lyrics, in contrast with the writings of the others, usually incline to the mushy and slushy. Back of all his odes, sonnets, and so forth there runs one central theme namely, "My girl is mine." As a concrete example, he prefers Watts Hospital as a background for his works, possibly because his wide and pleasant experiences there have enabled him to get a great amount of local color in his poems. Woodley is a valuable member of the Glee Club and the quartette, and he is past master with the "Song box", often times to the dire confusion of "Curbie" Farrington, the result of which is a rapid decrease in the morality of the campus should an average of emphatic language be taken at certain times. Woodley ought to learn that he ought not to play his guitar in "Curbie's" room after one o'clock when "Curbie" is trying to go to sleep.

JAMES HARMON MOORE WAYNESVILLE, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club, Class Baseball (1, 3), Varsity Baseball (2); Class Basketball (1, 3); Varsity Basketball (3, 4); Class Track (3); Varsity Track (3), Class Football (3); "T" Club; A.E.F. Club, Mountain Boomers' Club, Tombs; Y.M.C.A.

Moore has distinguished himself principally as forward in basketball. At this position he has earned the reputation of being one of the fastest in the State, and he proved it in the game with Carolina and the one with Florida. Moore is essentially a man's man, but he has been seen prowling around the Shack on several occasions, and one time he was inveigled inside. All great men, however, may make one mistake, but no more, and Moore has proved that in this respect he is a man of great prominence.

THOMAS AUBREY MORSE WILMINGTON, N. C.

Wilmington High School, Hesperian Literary Society, Executive Committee (3), Chaplain (3); Class Track (1); New Hanover County Club, Treasurer (3), President (4), Ex-Service Men's Club, Sandfiddlers' Club, Treasurer (4), Gymnasium Team (3, 4); Student Life Committee, Secretary (3, 4); President Trinity Bible Class (4); Y.M.C.A. Cabinet (4), Chairman Mission Study Committee (4).

Morse, although short physically, is pretty long mentally. He is best known by the fact that he has stood between the faculty and students during his Senior year as a member of the Student Life Committee. As far back as we can remember, he has gone into College activities with every ounce he could spare, and very often he has been heard from. Kaiser Bill evidently thought that Morse was coming because he vacated, and this action was probably a wise one. Shorty always has a smile for all of his friends, and if he has any enemies, we have never heard of them. It was chiefly because of Shorty's far-reaching influence that David Bispham honored Trinity with a concert. He has been a valuable assistant to Cap Card in his physical exercise. With such a good start, the question which arises is, Where will he stop?

CLAUDE HARLIN MOSER, A Z Φ
CHERRYVILLE, N. C.

Rutherford College, Columbian Literary Society, Business Committee, Chairman Executive Committee (2), Treasurer (3), Commencement Marshal (1), Rutherford College Club, President (2), Cleveland County Club, Vice-President (1), Hades Club, Chronicle Staff (3), Editor (4), Historical Society, Treasurer (2, 3), Assistant Manager Basketball (3), Tombs, Red Friars, 9010, Y M C A Program Committee (3, 4)

This is the man who has supplied Trinity with a College newspaper unexcelled in the State during this year. Hard as Dr. Brown is to please, he is forced to admit when run into a corner that the Chronicle has everything right that it does not have wrong, but he reserves all the credit for himself by saying that he taught Moser journalism in English 14. On Trinity College campus Claude is a firm believer in the inherent, transcendental frivolity of womankind, but it is rumored that a Cherryville girl has the key to his heart. We have no idea where she got it, but we will faithfully submit that she has drawn a lucky number.

CARL MOTSINGER
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

In Carl we find the Bolshevik of our class. He is always for the spectacular, and it has been said that Lenine would be glad to have Mot in his cabinet. Mot features in the French Circle. Little did he realize when as a member of the A.E.F. he spent his time "parley vooing" with the mademoiselles that this training would later stand him in good stead as a member of Dr. Webb's club. French is the language of love, and Mot evidently speaks fluently, else why the many visits to the Conservatory.

GROVER SAMUEL MUMFORD

Α Ζ Φ, Φ Β Κ
HANRAHAN, N. C.

Gritton High School, Freshman and Sophomore Honors; Junior Scholarship, Hesperian Literary Society, Assistant in French Department (3); Le Cercle Francais, Vice-President (3), Secretary (4), Commencement Marshal (3), Pitt County Club, Vice-President (4); 9910.

As may be seen from his above-mentioned honors, Mumford has majored chiefly in chatter-chatter,—and has got along very well with it too! But, contrary to what might be expected, he also has the unusual gift of small talk. He knows very well how to tend to his own duties and how to let other people look after those things which are theirs. He rarely asks a question on class, but results show that he has always been wide-awake. Truly it is a great accomplishment to go through College at such a great distance from "the madding crowd" and at the same time to attain the highest honors that superior scholarship can bestow.

MAUDE LUCILE NICHOLSON

STATESVILLE, N. C.

Sophomore Honors; Junior Scholarship; Student Council, Secretary (2); Y.W.C.A. Treasurer (3); Eko-L.

Maude entered with the Class of '21 in her Sophomore year, and we are all proud to own her. Her character is full of cordiality and harmony. Dignity, refinement, and modesty—that's Maude. And her grades,—you should see them. She does not work for a measly ninety, but with her the sky is the limit. How she does it is a mystery; you'll have to ask her.

CLAUDE BERNARD OLIVER
MARIETTA, N. C.

Claudia is a worker and not a talker. He never troubles trouble, but does his bit; somewhat unassuming, but pleasant to be around. He is a hard worker who is destined to make good. He is a good pal, a good student, and then some more. He stands ready at all times and sticks to his purpose. With success as his goal, he is certain to achieve results.

Secretary (3), President (4).

"Then let us sing for all we're worth,
Nor give a thought to sorrow."

Red has for the past four years very cleverly combined ministerial with social activities. He is also a tenor of great renown, and during his stay here his classmates have suffered unspeakably as a result of the same; however the other members of the College quartette have found it practically impossible to secure the proper effect without his popular warble. He has also reconciled himself with the various profs by majoring in Bible, and we have never heard them object to those blood-curdling melodies which he is so fond of starting on cold nights. Red, however, is a splendid student and a hearty supporter of student activities. It is our earnest hope that in business his success may be as brilliant as that fiery shock which is located on the top of his dome. What more could we wish?

AGNES LUCILLE PARKER CLINTON, N. C.

Trinity Park School, Trinity Park School Club,
Secretary (2); Athena Literary Society; Parthenon
Club, Vice-President (4); Glee Club, Y.W.C.A.

Here is a student who has majored in Latin, and still stands in the good graces of "Daddy" Gates. She is never blue because she has had the gift of keen humor bestowed on her by some kind fate. Lucille is studious, yet we know that if she is appealed to in the right way, she will gladly leave her studies, and join in any good wholesome fun. Our wishes for Lucille are that she may live long, keep her present attractiveness, get what she wants, and like what she gets.

EUSTACE RIVERS PERRY DURHAM, N. C.

Hesperian Literary Society, Y.M.C.A.

Farmer Perry is exactly what his nickname implies—a good old chap, who likes to sit around with two or three others, crack the old quid, and talk about "kags" and "chists" and "craps". He also has the record for straight shooting, it having been said that he can eject tobacco juice through his teeth into a dope bottle ten feet away without touching the neck. Perry is a great fellow for all of his primitive instincts, and a very worthy member of '21—one of whom we are justly proud. He is a great companion, a "jolly good fellow", and a far famed-leader of bull feasts.

JESSE LEE PETERSON, Α Ζ Φ
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Bessemer High School, Guilford County Club, President (4), Columbian Literary Society, Executive Committee (2, 3); Assistant to English Department (3, 4); Editor Archive (4); Y.M.C.A.; Tombs.

Pete is the editor of our famous semi-annual magazine, the Archive, and under his direction we hope that it will be transformed into a monthly publication before the year is over. Other familiar activities of Pete are expounding Woolley, flunking Freshmen, and smoking his corn-cob pipe. English is his long suit; consequently he is adept in journalism. He is quiet and unobtrusive, but staunch and trusty as a pal. Dr. Brown swears by him, probably because Pete is such an artist in bull, especially on paper. Never was truer saying than: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

IRENE PITTS, Φ Β Κ
ENFIELD, N. C.

North Carolina College for Women, Athena Literary Society; Current Events Club, Chairman (3, 4), Critic (3), Chairman Program Committee (4), Class Secretary (3); Sophomore Honors, Junior Scholarship, Glee Club (3, 4), Y.W.C.A., Treasurer (4), Eko-L.

"Where women are, the better things are implied if not spoken."

"No, no, I haven't got time. I've got two term papers to write for history, and the Current Events Club meets at four o'clock. Be sure to come!" It matters not how much Irene has to do, she always has time to stop and tell you how we did things at the Normal and to give you a bit of friendly advice. Where could we find a more ardent politician, more competent financier for the Y.W.C.A., a more deserving member of the Eko-L, a more enthusiastic supporter of Athena, or a truer friend than Irene?

HENRY DUGUID RICHARDSON
DOVER, N. C.

Dover High School, Hesperian Literary Society, Historical Society, Sandfiddlers' Club, Y.M.C.A.

Rich is another of these quiet and conservative fellows who are always on the job. His best known haunt is the section of the Inn just under Cat's Head, although he is often seen on the bench under the big oak just outside. He hasn't made himself so prominent as many other members of '21, but he has been there just the same. He carries a rather heavy line of bull, but he always waits till he gets back to his domicile before he unloads; therefore no one knows how close a race he might have shown Bill Towe for first place in the rank of artists if the two had ever locked horns across some bit of gossip. Rich has unlimited possibilities,—and his best friend is his pipe.

OSCAR LEONARD RICHARDSON
Δ Σ Φ, Φ Β Κ
MONROE, N. C.

Freshman Honors; Columbian Literary Society, Class Basketball (1, 3); Varsity Basketball (3, 4), "T" Club, Alumni Editor of the Archive, A.E.F. Club, Union County Club, Tombs., 0010

Like attract like, and, therefore, Long Rich falls for long women. "Plupoo's" line of Parisian bull is effervescent, and becomes mellow with age. All tongues cease to rattle when his line begins to flow. "Plupoo" rivals the brightest stars, and literally shines in academics, especially in English. As to athletics, he gets there in basketball, and there also is where he becomes "MY HERO" to a certain Co-Ed. At center, he towers above his opponent.

"Wine, Women, and Song, for then we can work the better."

LEWIS CASS RICHMOND, JR.
INEZ, KY.

Martin County Club, Morriss Harvey College; Biological Club, Assistant to Biological Department, Scrub Faculty, Cosmopolitan Club, Y.M.C.A.

Lewis Cass came to us from the land of fast horses and fine women. His first addition was his nick-name, Ikey, by which he has been known ever since. He did not like the class he entered with; therefore he was not satisfied until he had established himself in proper company. Now he is a true Senior because he is always seen with a derby and a cane. Yet with all his studying he has found ample time to take dancing lessons in the afternoons. As he has gone for medicine in good earnest, we predict that it will be only a short time before he will be one of the best known quacks in Kentucky.

ABRAHAM ROSENSTEIN
DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School, Durham High School Club Orchestra, Glee Club, Chemistry Club, Secretary (3), President (3, 4), Assistant to Chemistry Department (4); Scrub Faculty

Abe is studying his science courses diligently, and the result is that he has nearly turned Crowell Science Hall into a synagogue. He is a true Israelite, and has a great share of his race's talent for music. He has done good work in the Orchestra, in class meetings, and as assistant to Chemistry Department. Any objections, Farrington? He knows all the formulas from Adam to Harding; a regular Chem-Bull.

EVA ROSENSTEIN
DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School, Durham High School Club
Women's Athletic Association

"Beloved of all, to all a friend in need,
And loving; she is a friend indeed."

Eva talks incessantly, but she usually says something. She is a great favorite with her French Professor because of her knowledge of foreign customs, or rather that is what we credit her good marks to. She is also interested in her science courses, all of which shows that Eva is able to tackle something big in the professional world. But if she doesn't succeed as a scientist, those who have played basketball against her will readily recommend her as being an accomplished athlete.

MARGUERITE RUSSELL, K Δ
ASHVILLE, N. C.

Ashville High School, Class Secretary (2), Y.W.C.A. Cabinet (2), Pan-Hellenic Council (2, 4), Mountain Boomers' Club, Secretary (3), President (4), Stenographers' Club, President (3), Athena Literary Society, Short Story Club, Chairman (4), Folk Lore Society, Glee Club, Historical Society, Women's Athletic Association, Delta Phi Rho Alpha Margarite is another worthy addition to '21. She started with the class ahead, but she lost a year—therefore, we are able to call her our own. Her make-up combines beauty, vivacity, and common-sense, but it must be said for her that she practices her vamping almost entirely on the English Department, Dr. Brown being her favorite target; however judging by the size of the marks she draws on all the others, there is no room for doubt but that she has a lot of sense under her "lot" of black hair. There's not so much of her, but what there is, is of the best. She has a smile for everybody; never an unkind thought—a most excellent companion.

LOUIS LEONIDAS SASSER, K Σ
DURHAM, N. C.

Durham High School; Durham High School Club, Columbian Literary Society, Y.M.C.A.

Louis is kept down street most of the time. He rarely gets up to the campus for anything except Economics Classes and physical exercise. He has distinguished himself greatly in Track work. His record for throwing the hammer and the 56-lb. weight at the Olympic games last summer will probably never be broken, unless by himself. He is very popular with the boys on the campus, it having been said that he knows every Freshman two days after the opening of College in the fall. He has been a very busy man since his election as President of the First National Bank, and wherever you meet him he is usually all dated up.

JAMES HARRIS SHINN, K Σ, Σ Υ
NORWOOD, N. C.

Norwood High School, Oak Ridge Institute, Columbian Literary Society, Orchestra (1), Glee Club (1), Class Track (1), Class Tennis (1), Varsity Tennis (2, 3, 4), Captain (3), Assistant Manager Track (3), Manager Track (4), Southgate Short Story Prize (2), Assistant to the English Department (3, 4), Scrub Faculty (4), Editor-in-Chief of CHANTICLEER (4), Historical Society, Folk Lore Society, Vice-President (3), Stanly County Club, "T" Club, Tombs, Y.M.C.A.

He is still as he was at the first—absent of mind, loose in purpose, and aimless in amble. And he is Editor of the CHANTICLEER. He likes to sleep late, and eats more than any other animal.

"No farther seek his merits to disclose."

THE SENIORS

JAMES WOODARD TAYLOR
RICHLANDS, N. C.

Hesperian Literary Society, Class Baseball, Sand-fiddlers' Club, Y.M.C.A.

"Tub" could if he would, but he won't. If you want any dope about odds, however, he is the man you are looking for. Be sure to get his advice; then be sure to gamble the other way, and nine times out of ten you'll win. The chief event of Tub's Senior year was the break which came between him and Cavanaugh—a break which has since caused both parties great anguish, and Tub became so affected that he withdrew from College. We all hated to see him go, especially the boarders at Mrs. Dennis', where Tub and B. Ware had been entertaining the other more illiterate boys with lengthy psychological dissertations at each meal. But he certainly has an admirable disposition. Luck to you, Tub!

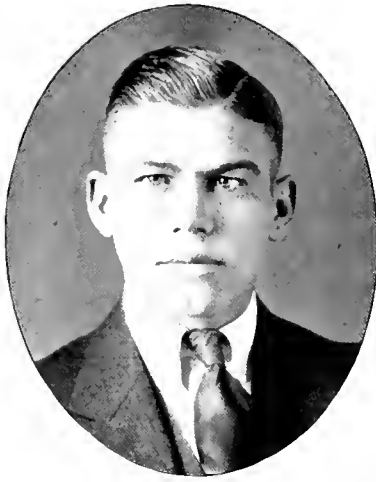

MARVIN FRANK TEETER
GEORGEVILLE, N. C.

Mount Pleasant Military Academy, Rutherford College (1); Weaver College (2), Class Track (3, 4), Class Baseball (4), Class Relay (4), Ex-Service Men's Club, Columbian Literary Society, Marshal (3); Executive Committee (4), Y.M.C.A.

Teeter is a good sport, especially when it comes to taking an active part with the rest of his class against such tyrannical measures as compulsory physical exercise which the faculty have been senseless enough to impose on the good Seniors. Teeter was in the army, and he considers that he got his there. He is at present hard on the trail of a diploma, and his greatest difficulty is Ec 7, but up to the time of this writing he has found ample means of circumventing Old Doctor Data, and we believe that his efforts will be entirely successful.

WILLIAM THOMPSON TOWE, K A
GARYSBURG, N. C.

Cary High School, Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4),
Captain (3); "T" Club, Manager Dope Shop (3);
Hades Club, Tombs, Y.N.C.A.

Bill is the critic of the class. We have on pretty good authority that he has stated he will be pleased with heaven, but no one ever heard him make a similar statement about anything else. Bill is a politician par excellence, and to him in a large measure may be ascribed Cam Morrison's election as Governor of the State, as well as the prominent officials in the Senior class. He plays baseball for all he is worth, and he is also a great checker shark—the former to develop a physique, and the latter to develop a brain. He has succeeded admirably in the first, and sooner or later we hope to see him make a success out of the second. And it might be well to add that all of Bill's criticism is of the constructive type, and he claims the same benefit for his actions—even when he carries off a peanut machine and hides it.

RAY JORDAN TYSOR, A Z Φ
ERECT, N. C.

Rutherford College; Columbian Literary Society, Corresponding-Secretary (2), Marshal (3); Class Relay (1), Class Football (3); Gymnasium Team (3, 4); Assistant Manager Baseball (3), Rutherford College Club, Secretary (3), President (4), Chronicle Staff, Assistant Business Manager (2, 3), Business Manager (4), Commencement Marshal (2), Officers' Club, Assistant Librarian (3); Y.N.C.A Reception Committee.

Ray is often seen wending his way to a certain nearby apartment house. Perhaps Professor Spence could tell us why? In his Sophomore days Ray sought adventure on the Rhine and found it at Plattsburg, and since his designs on Kaiser Bill were thwarted, he seems to be practicing on the fair sex. But Tysor is a good all-around fellow. He has a hand in many things on the park, and particularly the pocketbook of the Chronicle,—and there is no way of knowing how much he has knocked down on his job. A few summers ago Tysor began distributing books among the illiterate of the United States, and made a remarkable success of the proposition. Surely there is no reason why he should not manage his own business well!

Columbian Literary Society, Business Committee (2), Executive Committee (3), Chronicle Board (3, 4); Y.M.C.A., Chairman Bible Study Committee (3), Delegate to Blue Ridge Conference (2, 3), Vice-President (4); Classical Club, Secretary (4), Ministerial Band, Secretary Treasurer (3), President (4); Glee Club (3, 4).

Vaughan is one of the leading spirits in the ministerial band and in the Y.M.C.A. In his quiet, yet congenial manner, he has made many a Freshman feel at home during the first hard days of his College career. If any one ever needs a real friend, we can certainly assure him that in Vaughan he will find his search realized. He is one of the hardest workers in College, and one of the most likable fellows in our class. Scrupulously conscientious and unselfish, he commands the highest respect of his fellow students.

ROSA EDITH WADDELL
SELMA, N. C.

Louisburg College (1, 2), Athena Literary Society, Women's Athletic Association

Rosa is a sensible girl who participates in the broader fields of knowledge, and has aspirations to enter politics some day. To this field we recommend her because she has proved her ability by naturally taking to political work and because she likes it. Rosa has become a Fraushacker this year, and we on the campus are only now appreciating the sunny disposition, capability, and friendliness which we find so pleasantly combined in her.

"Nature intended that a woman should be her masterpiece."

"Please pronounce this French 5 for me!" This has been May's most persistent appeal for she has always tried to perfect herself in the French language. Although she "snucks surreptitiously" to Carolina between scenes, she always manages by coquetry to make a favorable response when called on. If one desires a person with a charming manner and a happy care-free attitude, then one may find all these in one in May.

Here is a Phi Beta Kappa who really deserves the honor. Beulah came into prominence on Fuzzy Ellis' English I classes, where she stood as the brightest of stars. Here is a girl who is nervous and broad-minded—slow but always accurate. Beulah is a positive proof that all of the modern Co-Eds are not in quest of a good time, and that some of them do seek after knowledge as ardently as our male friends.

Buck also has had a pretty tough time at "Trinkity" because it has taken him four years of hard work to get his "diploma". He is very susceptible to the blues, but when he gets "beat" down, he usually comes back with a big broad smile and a fag in each hand, "fogging up". He has finally won, however, but since he is educated, he does not know what to do with himself. Everybody hates to see him go because the College would probably grow dull without his rosy line to make things brighter. But, wherever he goes, we have found that you can gamble on him. Look at his record as our first football manager.

MARTHA EVA WIGGINS, A D II DENMARK, S. C.

"Wabble", whose name, by the way, comes from its resemblance to her signature and not her gait, is one of the "pillars" of the class. She is a good student, and ideal pal, and a faithful friend to all who are acquainted with her. Her record as a student speaks for itself, and shows four years of constant application. Little more should be said. "Wabble" is the kind of class mate that makes you want to stay in College forever—the kind whose friendship forms an inseparable link with you and pleasant days spent in four pleasant years. Truly we are grateful to South Carolina for this valuable member of our class.

"My gentle lady,

Rock Ridge High School, Wilson County Club, Secretary-Treasurer, Biological Club, Scrub Faculty; Assistant Instructor in Biology; Historical Society; Class Baseball (3); Hesperian Literary Society; Sandfiddlers' Club, Y.M.C.A.

Red takes the cake as being the chief optimist. For all anybody knows, he has gone through College with very little effort because he is never seen without his cheerful grin. He takes the hardest courses with perfect ease. He never complains, and he never busts. We wonder how he does it. He stands the roughest tests, and when the dust settles, Red is always found on the top of the pile, alive—and the prof underneath, dead.

"A very valiant gentleman, i' faith."

Zander believes that life will continue and that things will happen anyway—so why should he worry? (He doesn't.) Although he is nothing like a lounge lizard, he loves to shake a little. Sometimes he is a lion among women. Zander says he exercises enough in the evenings—so why should he report for Cap's Gym? (He doesn't.) When he will he can sure play tennis. He manages his courses pretty well, and keeps in touch with campus life.

RICHARD HAYGOOD WILSON

Okayama, Japan

Hesperian Literary Society, Hades Club, Cosmopolitan Club, Trinity Park School Club

Although he looks more like an Irish comedian, Wilson is really from the land of little yellow men across the waters—from Japan, the land of gabble; however his home address does not alter one jot or one tittle the fact that he is a full-blooded Anglo-Saxon. And Wilson is just like the rest of us—he pulls fags, over sleeps eight-thirty's, and cusses the profs, with an extra amount of attention to the dean,—“even as you and I.” And are these not the requirements for a regular Trinity student?

“A kind heart he hath.”

Trinity—we've learned to love you
In our hearts you'll ne'er grow old
While Old Glory floats over you
Lives of worth will still unfold.

Trinity—you've been a blessing,
And with gratitude we go
But we'll never, we're confessing,
Half repay you what we owe.

Trinity—we'll always love you;
May the classes yet to come
Love not just the flag above you
But their sacred College Home.

THE CHAMPION - 1922

BASCOM WEAVER BARNARD

Graduate Manager Athletics

It is to Graduate Manager B. W. Barnard that Trinity students are largely indebted for their increased opportunities in athletics. Since his appointment as supreme executive in this branch of activity, he has worked tirelessly to the end that we might have absolutely the best in athletics, and it is very probable that most of us will never know how much we have to thank him for; however we all do know that he has worked this past year as hard as he has been able for our best interest, and we hope that Trinity may be so fortunate as to have him back next year.

FLOYD J. EGAN

Professor of Physical Exercise

"Coach" Egan, as he is known to the majority of students, has made a record as a coach that speaks for itself, and although we may not have said so, we all realize that our success in football and basketball are due in the main to his excellent ability to train new men. To him also we will give credit for any success we may have in any other form of athletics. But possibly he has achieved a greater success than either of these; namely, the putting across of a physical exercise program—a problem which had baffled "all comers" heretofore.

Athletics at Trinity Under the New System

DURING the College year 1920-21 the students and friends of Trinity College have been introduced to a new management of athletics. This all-important phase of student activity has been divided into the business and the directing branches, with Graduate Manager B. W. Barnard and Coach Floyd J. Egan at the head of the two branches, respectively. Both are men of experience and efficiency, and their combined efforts have been successful in getting under way many long-needed alterations and additions to our athletic system; and although few of these improvements may be noticeable to outsiders, there is not a student in College who will not vouch for the fact that there is now on the campus an aggressive athletic spirit, which until this year was unknown. The most salient achievement of the new system is the remarkable success we had in football. Even the most skeptical will be forced to admit that Coach Egan accomplished a near miracle when he took a squad of practically untrained men and put them in such shape that they were able to go through the season without a single defeat. And there have been other improvements. New bleachers have been erected on the athletic grounds. The athletic fee for next year has been doubled, and in order to make up for any deficit that may arise from the low fee of this year, the students have come across with voluntary contributions which have made it possible for the Graduate Manager to carry out his very extensive program. We have a band; we have a mascot; we have splendid cheer leaders; and we have a loyal horde of students, all of whom are possessed with an invaluable species of enthusiasm which in this past fall has carried the White and Blue from victory to victory.

B. B. JONES
Captain, Football

"These are the times that try men's souls." Third down; three to go. A sudden hush fell over the bleachers. Every student leaned forward over his neighbor with his nerves tense with expectation and hope, and with his eyes strained out to the gridiron where twenty-two determined men lined up grimly—eleven of them desperately resolved to batter on through their opponents for the few remaining yards and make a niche for themselves in Trinity's hall of fame. Rock Hall glanced over the panting warriors and then bent down.

"Formation right; McGrannahan back, Signals, 31—42—15; 31—42—15—"

The ball flashed, and the entire Trinity line swept forward like a tidal wave, Midgett and Hatcher took out a guard; Derrickson and Pennington blocked a tackle; Crute and McNairy tore through the gap, scattering the Guilford defense; and a second later McGrannahan followed and planted the ball squarely behind the goal post. The first touchdown for Trinity in twenty-six years. Five hundred students rose as one with a mighty roar. For the first time in years the members of the faculty forgot their calm reserve, and frenzied doctors mingled with frenzied students in a struggling, swaying, shouting mass.

"T-R-I-N-I-T-Y, T-R-I-N-I-T-Y, TEAM TEAM TEAM!"

And the game went on. When it ended, the score was 20 to 7 in our favor, and we had our first real taste of a football triumph. That night we staged a celebration. The Sophomores took charge, and under their efficient direction, the Freshmen gave a creditable account of their enthusiasm over our victory. When the last snake-dance had ended and when the glow of the once mighty bonfire had died to flickering embers, we all went to sleep with smiles spread over our maps. It called for more.

The next Saturday, Emory and Henry paid us a visit, and after a hard-fought contest we beat them 7 to 0. The Trinity team played first-class ball all the time, and the work of the visitors was hardly less praiseworthy. It was in this game that Simpson made a name for himself when he intercepted a forward pass and then made a great run for a touchdown, which proved to be the only score of the game. Both teams played savagely at times, and there were a great many injuries. Captain Jones had his lip cut through in the second half, but he heroically stuck to his position for the remainder of the game. Emory and Henry was constantly making substitutions on account of injured men, but fresh players proved ineffective toward bringing them within striking distance of our goal line. We celebrated this victory also with a bonfire and snake-dance.

The next game was with Lynchburg, and nobody expected them to put up much of a fight against us. Our over-confidence came near being our ruin, because the Virginians presented a plucky line, a fast backfield, and an enormous number of trick formations and fake plays, all of which enabled them to gain consistently throughout the contest. Trinity made the first score when Simpson repeated his spectacular performance of the previous game by recovering a fumble and carrying it over the line for a touchdown. Then we ran into bad luck. Captain Jones was already out of the line with a split lip. Then Hall was hurt. Smith, who took the position of quarterback, handled the team skillfully indeed, but Lynchburg had begun to get the breaks. They made a touchdown in the first of the second half and kicked goal; and at the end of the third quarter, the score was 7 to 6 against us. Then came a change for the better. On a series of line plunges and cross-bucks, intermingled with forward passes and end runs, the Trinity backs carried the ball down the field for the winning touchdown. In all probability the referee's whistle robbed us of another, because when it sounded, the ball was in our hands and only a few inches from Lynchburg's goal line.

Then came the fight with Elon. We won it 13 to 6, chiefly on the splendid work of Crute, Hall, Neal, McGrannahan, and Leach although the whole line showed up excellently. McNairy and Hall made the two touchdowns, and Hall kicked a goal on one of them. It was in the last quarter of this game that the line, then composed of Neal, Leach, Jones, Simpson, Midgett, Mabry, and Pennington, covered itself with glory. Can anyone who saw the game forget how Elon had the ball within a half-yard of scoring distance and how they threw their whole weight of their mighty line against ours four successive times, and failed to gain an inch? Those men have certainly made themselves famous. It was a perilous time for Trinity, and when on the fourth plunge, McGrannahan jerked the man with the ball from the top of the pile of struggling players and the referee's whistle declared that the danger was over, the whole student body gave a yell of well-deserved praise for the men who had held like iron.

We wound up the season with a clean record by holding Wofford to a scoreless tie on Thanksgiving Day. The game was hard fought throughout, and neither side had a very good chance to score. A long drop kick by one of the Wofford backs, which hit the cross bar failed to go over only by inches, was the lone feature of the game, excepting the spectacular work of Crute and Neal. A fumble on a forward pass cost us our only chance to score.

Well, we did not beat them, but they did not beat us, although they saved all their good men from the previous game to insure their having a victory. Every student and every alumnus is proud of the showing made by the team, and they have a right to their feelings. And no group of men deserves more credit for success than those who entered last season, unheard of as football players and underated even by the most optimistic, and made themselves famous by their determination and courage.

To the students it appears that a season without a defeat is indeed a creditable record for our first year of intercollegiate football. It is true that we did not play Carolina, N. C. State, Wake Forest, or Davidson, but we had two men, Crute and Neal, picked for the All-State team by Coach Egan, and he ought to know. The prospects for next year are especially good. Only two men of the first team are lost by graduation, and next year the Coach will be handling experienced veterans, and not a group of entirely new men; then—we have just started, and a clean record for the first season certainly speaks well for future struggles. Football at Trinity is a reality. The whole student body is being educated into the science of the game. The institution is a college again, and the ancient fighting spirit is here to stay. Bright prospects are before us, and next year will see a formidable eleven trot out on the gridiron for the first game, and in the bleachers the all-important fighting spirit will manifest itself among the howling, bareheaded rooters, as there bursts from every inspired throat:

"TRINITY, TRINITY, How we love her banner, her banner;

Captain, Baseball

The Baseball season of 1920 was one checkered with brilliant successes and gloomy failures, and left us to a certain extent with realized expectations and to a certain extent with blasted hopes. We began the year with a promising team, a coach with an enviable record, and a goodly crop of Freshmen from which to pick players to hold down open berths. The pitching staff showed up unusually well. Joe Caviness was back for another year's service, and Carroll, who had steadily won supporters since his first year as being the club's best bet, was expected to carry the hardest games on his shoulders. Brown, who showed from the first that he could be depended upon, developed as the season progressed into one of the best southpaws in the State. The other places on the team were at length settled as follows: Carson, catcher; Salmon and Folger, first base; Neal, second base; Towe, short-stop; Johnston and Chandler, third base; Cole, right field; McArthur, center field; and Hathaway, left field. With such a promising personnel Trinity surely had a right to expect great results.

The first game was with Lenoir College. There was little of interest about it because we won without much effort. It might be mentioned, however, that Carroll had a no-hit game up until the ninth inning when he was taken out by Chick to let Joe try his hand. Elon showed us a better time. Joe started the game, and unfortunately was very wild. He filled the bases in the second inning, and a moment later Elon's clean-up king tripled past Cole in right field. That gave the visitors three runs, and saved them a shut-out for we got busy with our bats in the third, and Brown held them helpless thereafter. The final score was about eight to three in our favor. Then came the game with Wake Forest—at Wake Forest. Carroll pitched, and he let them down to three hits while Trinity hammered the ball to all corners of the Baptist's park, winning four to one. Thus we disposed of one strong rival.

Our hard luck started in the game with N. C. State in Raleigh, where errors tossed our chances away despite the fact that Joe outpitched Murray and our team outhit the locals. But it was only the beginning. Then came the nine-inning agony with Carolina, which they took, one to nothing. Carroll was literally invincible for us, and as the struggle went on, the crowd was quick to see that the long twirler was pitching the game of his life—tirelessly driving ball after ball over the plate with the smoke and break that only a man of his sterling worth could master. But it came in the sixth when the Tar Heel, who hit to third, got to second on an error,

The baseball schedule for the coming season has been announced by Manager J. E. Quinn. The schedule will include a total of twenty games, eight to be played on the home grounds and twelve to be played on foreign territory. The spring trip of the squad will be through the State of Virginia, on which trip the strong tennis of V. P. I., Washington and Lee, V. M. I., and Randolph-Macon will be met.

Coach Doak has had the squad out for practice for about two weeks now and he reports that they will be in first-class condition for the first game with Lenoir College here on March 23. Several letter men of last year's winning team are back, and there is an abundance of new material. All present conditions seem to indicate that this year's team will not fail to bring a pennant winner.

Brown Pitched Good Game and Chandler Made Three Hits Out of Four Trips Up—Toss a Clean Play

In a game characterized by consistent teamwork, Trinity College Monday afternoon defeated Elon in baseball by the score of 9 to 2. After getting the away to a had start, the Methodist team hit from then until the end of the game had decidedly the best of the argument.

Caviness, who started the game for Trinity, failed to hold back the Elon hitters, allowing four safeties in the first inning. By flashy fielding, however, the Trinity team held the visitors to only one score. Elon snapped another score in the second by some additional hitting. In the fourth inning Brown, Trinity's southpaw the result of the nervousness and over-anxiousness of two new players. The man who followed doubled to left, and— Neal's wasted triple in the seventh and Carver's futile dash from third in the eighth are now details that awaken only bitter memories of what might have been. Let it pass. We fought and lost. The Fates had voted against us at the outset.

Our jinx still pursued us on the Virginian trip, this time in the shape of cold weather. All the players did well in spite of bad service, wretched railroad connections, and snowstorms, but Dame Fortune was looking the other way. Joe Caviness alone was able to win under the circumstances, but he turned in a win at Washington and Lee which is still talked about here and there. The team finally returned to Durham, depressed in spirits, but happy at last to get back to a warm climate.

The last part of the season proved to be the poorest because then we suffered reverses at the hands of Elon and Carolina. The Elon game was a great surprise. They seemed to have gotten on to Brown somehow, and they straightened out his curves much more easily than in the first game; however, the lefthander might have won if he had been properly supported. Joe pitched the last game against Carolina, and showed up equally as well as he had against Washington and Lee. They got the game by the score of two to one, after twelve hard-fought innings. Wilson, who had beaten us twice before, turned the trick for the third time. His control was almost perfect, and as the Trinity men hit the first ball pitched, he was able to establish a new record for the fewest number of thrown balls in nine innings — none of which helps to alleviate our sufferings a particle.

So much for 1920 season. As we look toward the future, a glance at the prospects for the year shows that we have a splendid man in charge, ten or twelve old men back, and a crowd of new candidates that resembles a small army. All are working hard to the end that we may have a winning club. At no time during the past winter did players cease to dream of two-base hits and one-hand catches, and rumors have been traveling around the campus that this year Trinity will put out a team that will set the State on fire. Now look at some of the men we have! Towe is back at shortstop. Carson, the captain, is again behind the bat, and Carroll is in front, better than ever. Neal, Johnston, and Chandler are all working out for old positions in the infield. In the outfield we have Cole, McArthur, and "Hath," that wonderful trio, now on the job for their fourth year. It is appropriate here to mention that in the past three years only eighteen hits have been made in their territory, and we always feel pretty safe when we see a ball going toward them. Watch us this spring! It is bad policy to count chickens before they are hatched, and far be it from us to crow at this early day; however, there is usually something in playing a hunch, but possibly the hunch should not be mentioned either. But it may be safely said that the whole squad is rapidly getting in readiness to give their very best. Even now you may hear in the afternoons the encouraging calls that float back and forth across the dusty diamond from one infielder to another, the sharp smack of hard driven grounders and lofty flies as they drop into hungry gloves, and the inspiring ring of wood on horse hide—the sound that is so loved by all ball players—and above all there is apparent a spirit of unbeatable optimism. The first trial is against New York University. It would probably do Mr. Egan good to see a team he has coached outclass his old College. He may not see us win, but he'll surely see us go after them with the idea of making every minute interesting, and when we start our northern trip, it will be the supreme ambition of every member of the club to carry the colors of old Trinity victorious through every scrap. Then we'll all settle down to the big hard race for the State Championship. We have lost it two years by the narrowest of narrow margins because luck broke exactly against us. But luck can't stay against us, and in the opinion of every student, the worm is turning. It started when Coach Egan signed his contract. Let us hope that by the first game it will have undergone a complete revolution.

In Basketball, as well as in the other forms of athletics, Trinity has experienced a splendid season. Although Hip Martin, Brick Starling, and Skin Ferrell were lost to us, the old men who were back and the new ones who started out worked with that same optimistic and patriotic spirit which threw the Trinity rooters into pandemonium on that celebrated night in Raleigh when in the Championship game with N. C. State, we were a point behind and Brick Starling caged a goal from about mid-floor in the last two minutes of play—thereby giving us the State title.

Captain Hathaway and Coach Egan found last fall that they had a strong team in the making. Long Rich was back to get all the tip-offs; Moore to twirl them in. Before practice had gone very far, it became evident that Simpson and Crute had cinched regular places on the team. From the first Spikes showed up well as a substitute forward, and the early development of Brady, and that of Burch, later on, as a guard and Center, respectively, came in good when regulars began to be disabled.

The first game was with Guilford, and was very uninteresting to spectators, except to awaken Trinity students to the realization that they had a great team. The real test came with N. C. State; it was supposed to be one of the hardest fights on the schedule, but there was not so much in basketball as we expected—for we won 33 to 11—but we came near seeing a real fight in the second half when Captain Ripple of the visitors, unfortunately forgot himself in the excitement and heat of the game. Then Carolina came over with their celebrated best-in-the-State team to beat us, and got licked. We were forced to concede that the visitors had a team that worked like a well oiled piece of machinery and everybody watched their fast forward, Cart Carmichael pull off exhibitions of impossible goal shooting and lightning-like dribbling with gasps of apprehension. But Trinity kept the crowd to its feet by dropping in two goals just when they were necked. It was a terribly close call, and will long be remembered by both colleges.

The game with Florida State probably saw our team at the best form it attained throughout the whole season. Although the visitors showed us a close race in the first half, Trinity broke loose in the second, and with unbounded joy we watched Moore and Rich toss in goal after goal, while the whole team consistently and mechanically worked signals until the affair grew monotonous. Coach Egan put in a team of subs near the end of the second half, and, as if inspired by the record of Having disposed of the University of South Carolina and North Carolina State in easy fashion, Trinity faced the quint of the University of North Carolina in a hard and fast game on the evening of the twenty-sixth on the local court and after a hard fight for four hours, emerged victorious by the narrow margin of three points, the score standing 25-22. Trinity had expected very stiff opposition and great things had been rumored of the strength of the Carolina squad, different letter men from whom to

We expect our team to come back undefeated, but there is no sound assurance that it will more than split even on the trip. those before them, they played like veterans. Truly, our men played unbeatable basketball that day.

Of the Virginia trip little should be said. We lost games to Washington and Lee, V. M. I., University of Virginia, and V. P. I., and the trip unfortunately got us out of the winning habit. Let it be said in our favor, however, that Coach Egan had trained his basketball team to play basketball, and had neglected to give it any drill in football whatever. Not once did he put the men through practice in tackling or scrimmages! Think of it! And all the time he knew we had a trip scheduled through Virginia.

We lost the last two games with Carolina, and incidentally the State Championship, by distressfully large scores, but as one reflects what could we have expected otherwise? Richardson was still nursing a broken nose, an injury sustained in the V. M. I. indoor football game, and the others members of the team were half sick with Spanish influenza. In the first game Moore should have been in bed taking medicine, instead of trying to play basketball. Crute played all through the second game pale as a sheet, but he stuck with his man, and probably did better than any others of the team.

The last game with N. C. State and the last of the season showed that we had not yet lost our fighting spirit because the team which had beaten Carolina six days before went down ingloriously before our onslaught. So we wound up with a good taste in our mouths.

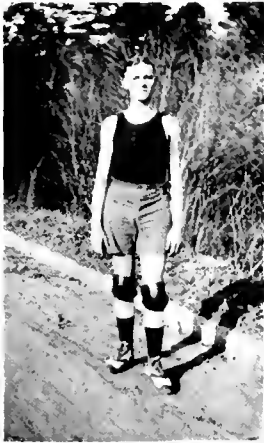

We did not get the State Championship; and we have no excuses to make, however, it is due every member of the team the praise of all students in College for the way he fought, and Coach Egan's tireless and successful efforts to give Trinity a basketball team of which she may be truly proud cannot be commended too highly. During the last two games he was sick, but then Captain Hathaway and Cap Card took things in hand, and did absolutely the best they could under the circumstances. We had no individual stars, although all played superior basketball most of the time. None of our men were fast as chain-lightning. We did not claim at any time that our team was unbeatable, but in North Carolina it barely missed—by two games. And what did it? Anybody who saw the squad work out will tell you that we attained our success through hard work, sacrifice of individual aspirations, and a rigid co-operation with Coach Egan's clean, sportsmanlike style of game, which has won the profound respect of every team we have played— including, moreover, many of those who sniffed contemptuously in the first of the season at the idea of Trinity's being able to turn out a squad of efficient players after the loss of so many old men.

E. B. WHITENER
Captain, Tennis

The Fall of 1920 saw five men of the last spring's Varsity squad back in college. Manager Lewis made great haste to get his tournament started, and when the dust of that struggle settled, he found that he had Whitener, Shinn, Cornwell, Hackney, and Hathaway for his team. Whitener was elected captain, but so closely contested were the various matches of the tournament that the supporters of the celebrated game decided that Trinity would stand a good chance for the state championship this year.

The mettle of the new team was tested in a meet with Carolina on October 7th at Chapel Hill; the result was a victory for Trinity for the first time in seven years. The different matches were closely fought, however, and the result was always in doubt. Captain Whitener won from Williams by the score of 6-1, 5-7, and 6-0. Williams played a strong game, using his puzzling serve to a very great advantage, but Whitener's tenacity in sticking to his net gains and his exhaustive tactics, particularly his method of volleying to alternate corners of the court, wore down his opponent in the second set, and thereafter he was able to win successive games almost at will. Cornwell won from Bardin in the second match, 4-6, 8-6, 7-5. Bardin was in the game every minute, and he might have stood a better chance but for his nervousness. The strain of the match told chiefly in his lobs, which were all short—a fatality which was exactly suited to Cornwell's method of attack. Hackney lost to Gardner by a very narrow margin, 4-6, 6-1, 6-8. Both men were very evenly matched, and both were within one point of the last set several times. Gardner's cleverness at the net during the last few games was probably the deciding factor. In the last match to be finished, Shinn won from Jeringan, 4-6, 6-3, 10-8. Jeringan played a methodical game, making up in accuracy what he lacked in speed. Shinn was clearly beaten in the middle of the last set, but, with the score 4-1 against him, he abandoned his net tactics for a back court game, and luckily his lawfords did for him what his volleys had failed to accomplish. The doubles did not turn out so well. Cornwell and Hathaway lost to Jeringan and Gardner, 2-6, 2-6. The fact that the Carolina men exhibited better team work in this match may be attributed to the fact that Cornwell and Hathaway had not played in doubles since their Freshmen year, and, therefore, it could hardly be expected that they show as perfect a combination as they might have under more favorable circumstances. The match of Whitener-Shinn and Williams-Bardin was full of sensations. Carolina won the first set, 6-4

TRINITY TAKES TENNIS MATCH FROM CAROLINA

METHODISTS WIN THREE OUT OF FIVE MATCHES IN FIRST MEET HELD

SECOND CONTEST TO BE FRIDAY

Entire Number of Matches Were Well Played by Both Teams. Second Contest Will Be Played Here

The Trinity tennis team defeated the Carolina tennis team by winning three out of five matches completed in the first meet of the season which was played at Carolina last Saturday. The matches were as follows: Whitener, Trinity, beat Williams, Carolina, 6-1, 5-6; Cornwell, Trinity, beat Bardio, Carolina, 4-6, 1-6; Shinn, Trinity, beat Jernigan, Carolina, 4-6, 3-6; Gardner, Carolina, beat Hackney, Trinity, 3-6, 6-1, 8-6; and Gardner and Jernigan, Carolina, beat Cornwell and Hathaway, Trinity, 6-2, 6-2.

The entire number of matches were very well played by both sides, and the games proved to be unusually interesting to all observers.

The first match taking place at the meet between Whitener and Williams, (Williams, Carolina's first man) was very close indeed,

TRINITY TEAM VICTORIOUS OVER GULFORD IN TENNIS

Trinity Men Outclassed Visitors. Methodists Have Good Chance For State Champions

Trinity defeated Gulford in a fast tennis match played here last Friday afternoon by winning the entire number of matches. It was plainly evident that the Trinity team entirely outclassed the Gulford team, however, Gulford put up an exceptionally good fight and the match proved to be exceedingly interesting to all observers. The following is a list of the players on both teams and the outcome of each match. For Trinity—Whitener, Shinn, Cornwell, Hathaway, and Hackney. For Gulford—Winn, Gloff, Zachary, and Merriman. Hackney and Cornwell defeated Merriman and Gloff 6-3, 6-0. Shinn and Whitener defeated Winn and Zachary 6-0, 6-1. Both Whitener and Gloff 6-1, 6-0. Cornwell defeated Winn 6-1, 6-1. Shinn defeated Zachary 6-2, 6-4.

There were no especially spectacular plays made in the whole match, although method may be made of the unusual steadiness and accuracy of Whitener's game. He played his opponent a very fast game, winning most of his points by accurate placements and swift

CORNWELL MAKES BEST SHOWING

State Championship Winners in Doubles Last Year Are Defeated by Cornwell and Shinn. Shinn Played Accurate Game

By winning the best two out of three matches in a tennis tournament played here against Wake Forest, Trinity scored her third season victory for the year. Whitener, Cornwell, and Shinn composed the Trinity team, and Stringfield and Crittenden composed the team for Wake Forest.

The tournament was started off with the doubles, Shinn Whitener vs. Stringfield Crittenden. This resulted in a victory for Trinity by the score of 7-5, 6-1. The singles match between Stringfield and Whitener resulted in a victory of the former by the score of 6-1, 6-2. The singles between Cornwell and Crittenden was won by Cornwell by the score of 6-1, 6-1.

At the first of the doubles match it seemed as though Wake Forest would capture the victory, but after they had a lead of 2-0, the Trin-

Whitener and Shinn then staged a rally and took the second by the same count. In the last set Williams and Bardin started the most remarkable come-back of the whole meet when the score was 5-1 against them, and their plucky fight, coupled with their opponents' rather cynical contempt for their game, brought the set to deuce. The referee then called the play on account of darkness, and by the official ruling Trinity was declared winner, because the majority of finished matches had gone to her.

The second match of the season was with Guilford on the local courts. The visitors proved very easy for the home players, and failed to take a set out of the afternoon's play. Whitener and Shinn won from Winn and Zachary, 6-1, 6-0. Cornwell and Hackney won from Merriman and Gloff, 6-3, 6-2. In the singles, Whitener won from Winn, 6-1, 6-0; Shinn won from Zachary, 6-2, 6-4; Cornwell won from Gloff, 6-1, 6-4; and Hathaway won from Merriman, 6-3, 6-2. The outstanding feature of the match was the all-around work of Hackney in doubles. "The son of Lexington" went through both sets at top speed, and undoubtedly carried the heaviest part of the match on his shoulders. His net playing, lobbing, and stroking were all done with a nicety that kept the Guilford pair completely baffled, and his team work with Cornwell was all that could be asked for.

The third match of the season was with Davidson, and it resulted in our first defeat this year; though why, nobody seems to know. The story of the agony may be briefly told. Shinn and Whitener lost the doubles to Bradley and Ormond, 7-5, 6-4. Cornwell won from Ormond in singles, 6-1, 6-4; but Whitener lost to Bradley, 3-6, 3-6. Many excuses have been offered. The Guilford match had undoubtedly taken the edge off the players; a high wind swept the court from the beginning of plays to the end; and it was a cold day favorable for anything except good tennis; but none of these alibis satisfied. Bradley was good, but Whitener at his ordinary game should have had little trouble with him. The doubles were unspeakable, but their loss in a large measure may be accounted for by Shinn's lamentable lack of form although neither of our two men were anywhere near their best. The sole redeeming feature of the match was Cornwell's clean-up of Ormond, by which he showed that at least one of the team had not been spoiled by two victories and that his game was not compromised by adverse circumstances.

In the last meet of the season, with Wake Forest, the local players showed a complete reversal of form, and beat their opponents handily. Shinn and Whitener won the doubles, 7-5, 6-1. In this match Shinn redeemed himself by playing a good game throughout. He was particularly strong on his overhead work, and showed good form in putting away deep lobs and in cross-court volleying. Whitener also played strongly and speedily. He and Shinn exhibited a perfect parallel formation, through which the Wake Forest men found it practically impossible to work their shots. Stringfield and Crittenden played well, but after the first few games, they were hopelessly out-classed. Whitener lost to Stringfield, 6-1, 6-3, but Cornwell once more rose to his opportunity and turned in the deciding point by beating Crittenden decisively, 6-1, 6-1. In this match, Cornwell played his best game of the season, and showed that he was both fast on his feet, and sure with his strokes and volleys.

In spite of the slip with Davidson—and in the opinion of all it was a slip—Trinity still has a good chance to win the state championship next spring as she had this fall. The only defeat of the season came at the hands of Davidson, whose team was beaten the next day by Wake Forest, and a week later Wake Forest was completely humbled at the hands of Trinity. The strongest factor in favor of the local team is the fact that the players are well balanced. Although Captain Whitener is admittedly the champion of the college, there is not a man on the team who is not capable of giving him a run for his money any day, and when Cornwell, Shinn, Hackney, or Hathaway stack up against each other, there are few who venture any forecasts as to the outcome of their matches. Dr. White's hopes sank at the performance of his team against Davidson, but they rose to ethereal heights when he saw it in action against Wake Forest.

H. P. COLE
Captain, Track

The Track season of 1920 was in many respects similar to the record of the baseball team—alternated with brilliant successes and depressing reverses. Some phenomenal runners were developed, and some very good men were brought for the field events; but the lamentable absence of strong second place men was an open sore so far as the management was concerned throughout the whole season. The successes of the team may in a large measure be attributed to the efforts of Coach Ruff and Captain Loftin.

All meets last year were held on the local track, with the exception of the State Meet, which was held, as usual, at Chapel Hill. It has been humorously remarked that it is against the tradition of the College and express ruling of the Board of Trustees to schedule a meet at any place farther than Cary, but the failure of those in charge to give the team any trips last year was no fault of the Manager's. A trip to Lafayette College was almost closed at one time in the spring, but for some reason or other it never materialized—much to the regret of all concerned at Trinity.

The first meet was with Wake Forest, which we took after both teams had see-sawed back and forth out of the lead during the greater part of the afternoon. Our squad showed the good effects of superior coaching, and our first men on the whole apparently outclassed those of the Baptists. We did enjoy, however, watching their star runner, Heckman, set his stride. Indeed it was no fault of Heckman's that his team lost because he did his part with a vengeance; but of course one athlete cannot take a meet unaided. For Trinity, the Harrison boys, Edwards, and Moore deserve especial mention. We lost the meet with Carolina chiefly because we had no men who could take second and third places. During the greater part of the meet the unusually large crowd watched our best men consistently win first places, and at the same time see Carolina trail us because they would take second and third. Then at some time they would get a first and forge in the lead; however the good work of some of the White and Blue athletes should not be overlooked. It was in this meet that we all witnessed the remarkable record which Barnhardt set on the dashes. He had not been in training for track previously, but Joe Ruff saw possibilities in him, and induced him to try out. The result was that Barnhardt was one of our best bets before the season was over. The meet with Virginia Military Institute was a repetition of the one with Carolina—brilliant runs by some of our men which were offset in the score by the second and third places taken by the visitors. The feature of this

By the score of 71 to 63, Trinity defeated A. and M. in the second of their scheduled track meets this season held on New Hanes Athletic Field on last Friday afternoon, thereby evening up the series.

On account of a traveling team which fell throughout the entire meet no unusual records were made by either team. Out of a total of fourteen events, Trinity took first honors in nine, the low hurdles, 100-yard dash, 250-yard dash, the half mile, high hurdles, two miles, discus throw, broad jump and pole vault. The cadets were in fine form and Trinity can only attribute her decisive defeat to the fact that she met a team much superior to her own. A very fine sporting spirit was shown throughout the entire meet and all of the events were lively contested.

Perhaps the first intercollegiate cross-country run that has been held in the state will be judged at Chapel Hill, the affair being entirely under the auspices of the University of North Carolina track team.

Very much interest is being manifested in this event throughout the state, and according to a report made public by the manager of the Carolina team, five colleges in the state will send representatives to compete in the run. The colleges that have already signified their intention of entering the run are Carolina, Trinity, A. and M., and Wake Forest. The Davidson track manager has indicated that his college could compete in the event, although he has not definitely made known his intention of being present with representatives.

WAKE FOREST MEET

A score of 72 to 46, in favor of Trinity, was the result of the track meet between Trinity and Wake Forest which was held on the Hanes field Wednesday, April 21. Although no records were broken, the meet was close and interesting throughout and neither college was certain of victory until the final event.

Hickman, of Wake Forest, was the highest individual scorer since he took first place in four events and third place in a fourth. His score was 21. Cole and Barnhardt shared this honor for Trinity, as both took two first places. Powell, of Trinity, did stellar work by winning the mile and taking the second place in the two mile, although he had not trained for the latter event.

Hickman won first place in the hundred yard dash for Wake meet was the half-mile run by Smith Lewis, in which he broke his own State record, but Smith had to run. Both he and his opponent almost "dashed" the half-mile, and Smith states that it was on that afternoon that he first found out that he could run himself down. The N. C. State College meet was some better. John Armstrong, then an ambitious Freshman, succeeded in throwing the javelin farther than any man at Trinity has done heretofore; and Barnhardt, Edwards, the Harrisons, Moore, and Cole all performed well.

The State meet also ended with very gratifying results. We took second place and with better luck we might have beaten Carolina out; however nearly all of our men who participated, especially Pebbles Powell, made names for themselves. It was also at this meet that L. L. Rose attained his celebrated nick-name which has since persistently clung to him.

Possibly the greatest blow which the team suffered during the whole season was the loss of Captain Loftin, who was so full of College spirit and so interested in the welfare of his team that he tried to run even when he knew that he was sick. In the V. M. I. meet he had to fall out, and an examination which the doctors gave him the next day revealed the fact that he had been running all spring with a bad case of appendicitis. The whole College was deeply affected, and the track team soon found out that it had sustained a serious loss. No one had trained more thoroughly or more conscientiously than Captain Loftin to give the track team everything he had in his Senior year, and had he not been so afflicted, there is no doubt but that he would have been heard from even better than he had been in the three years previously.

The track team for this year is looking forward to better things. Loftin is coaching a healthy squad of men who have turned out to try for places on the team, and the recent class events have revealed some very promising material. We have Harrison, Stamey, Cole, Armstrong, Powell, Battershill, Shuster, Bruton, Moore, Giles, and several other old men out for places, and they are all showing up well. In the Freshman class Pinnix, Blades, and Barnhardt have perhaps demonstrated the best form so far, and at present they seem to have places sewed up; soon we shall expect to see them step up beside Barnhardt the Elder, Giles, Cole, and the rest of the boys. And when the whole crowd is fully equipped with new outfits and new uniforms, it will be a sight for tired eyes. The first meet is with Carolina, on April 11th, and this year we are hoping to reverse things a bit. Then will follow meets with Wake Forest and N. C. State, both on the local track, and finally the State meet at Chapel Hill. In the meantime a southern trip with two meets is being arranged with Wofford, Clemson, University of South Carolina, or Georgia Tech; therefore it may be seen that in this respect an existing tradition of the College will more than likely be broken.

Class Track

It should be mentioned that in the recent class contests which were held in the fall there was a great amount of interest. As usual, Freshmen came out in overwhelming numbers, and, despite the new regulations of Mr. Egan, they succeeded in carrying off first place as they have been accustomed to do. Class relay, however, resulted differently. The Sophomores, captained by C. E. Jordan, pulled first place; the Freshmen, second; the Juniors, third; and the Seniors, fourth. The best result of these preliminaries was the fact that they demonstrated that we have some excellent material on hand—still in the rough to a certain extent, but capable of great accomplishments after practice. Now they are all taking their drills steadily. It is now a regular thing to hear the famous signal "On your mark; Get set; Go"; and we all hope that in the coming meets our men will be the first to go and the first to stop.

Acknowledgment

IT would be very poor grace for the official staff of THE CHANTICLEER to allow the book to be published without having in it some mention of persons to whom we are indebted for contributions. This annual is not the product of any small group of students. Although its make-up has been handled by the editor and its sales by the business manager, and although their industrious assistants are due a great amount of credit for making the annual what it is, there are other students whose names do not appear on the staff picture, but whose work has been instrumental in giving the book some of its most attractive features. Mr. T. B. Crawford and Mr. R. C. Leach have done valuable art work in backgrounds and running headings. Mr. K. W. Litaker has drawn some of our best cartoons, and is in reality due a place on the art staff. Miss Helen McCrary has made some most acceptable contributions for the feature section, in spite of her engaging duties as literary editor on another college publication. Mr. G. E. Powell has also helped out with two of the best stories in the feature section. Our literary section contains contributions from Messrs. C. D. Smith, W. C. Merritt, R. T. Dunstan, N. I. White, D. W. Newson, John Small, and Miss Blanche Barringer. To Miss Clara Harris, of Concord, N. C., we are deeply indebted for the drawings for the divisional inserts which appear at the first of the different books. And last, but by no means least, should be mentioned the valuable advice of Mr. Floyd J. Egan, Dr. N. I. White, Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, Dr. W. T. LaPrade, and many others members of the faculty and the students.

In this short statement we have not tried to mention personally everybody who has helped out because the list is too long; in concluding, however, the editor wishes to thank every student of Trinity College for their assistance or their good wishes, as the case may be, and to assure them that THE CHANTICLEER for 1921 is really their own annual, for their loyalty and co-operation with the staff have made it possible.

There is probably no other phase of student activity at Trinity College which has had such phenomenal development as our Glee Club. The organization had almost been allowed to pass out of existence during the war, but in the fall of 1919 it was reorganized, and financial success was guaranteed by the Tombs. Its history since then has been a succession of successful appearances at home and abroad. Manager Draper proved a capable man to arrange engagements, and under his direction the Club made money in 1919-'20. In the fall of 1920 the Club was incorporated into the Trinity Musical Clubs, with L. M. Draper as President and W. W. Turrentine as Business Manager. Professors Bloomquist and Patterson took charge of the band and the orchestra, respectively. The first appearance of the Club in Craven Memorial Hall on November 20th was a tremendous success. The Club as a whole performed admirably, and the band and the orchestra showed the results of superior coaching. The quartette, composed of Parham, Draper, Merritt, and Farrington made a great hit. They started some genuine "harmony," and popularized several songs and ballads, chief of which are: "Shine on, Harvest Moon," "Who's Gonna Love You When I'm Gone," "Get away, Jordan," and "Get You a Kitchen Mechanic from the White Folkses' Yard, and Let Those Tantalizing Browns Alone." The Mandolin Club was encored after each selection.

On November 20th the Club took an extended trip through Virginia and western North Carolina, stopping among other places at Danville, Lynchburg, Greensboro, Lexington, Charlotte, and Rockingham. At every performance the members made themselves famous, and now it is no unusual thing to hear some visitor from far countries speak in glowing terms of Farrington's abdominal gutturals, of Turrentine's gymnastics with the drum sticks, of Fat Blades' charming smile, and of the unqualified endorsement of the whole Club for heavy dinners and pure water.

Last Friday afternoon a number of college men assembled in the Y. M. C. A. hall for the purpose of organizing a Trinity College Glee Club. A large number of all men, who have been members of the Glee Club in the past, were present and made interesting talks, emphasizing the importance of a Glee Club at Trinity College.

L. M. Draper was elected manager of the club for this year. Mr. Draper has had much experience in this kind of work, and there is no doubt that he will bring to the club all the best talent of the college and organize a club that will be a credit to the institution.

Mr. Draper states that he has consulted the officials of the college, and secured their approval and support.

The plan of present is to get the club organized and to take a

The Glee Club gave its annual concert in the Chapel Laboratory hall on last Monday evening, rendering what was pronounced by persons who have been connected with the college for many years to be the best program from all standpoints that any Trinity Glee Club has ever given. A very large crowd was out to hear the concert, and the program was a series of continued surprises. The program was very well balanced, having orchestral selections, quartets, solos, readings, and enough popular "jazz" to keep the audience in a pleasant mood.

The college quartet composed of R. A. Parham, L. M. Draper, W. C. Merritt, and R. K. Farrington, made a devoted hit with the audience. Their humorous selections and their jazz numbers together with their fine interpretation of several popular numbers

"All the requisites that go to make up a popular Glee Club were to be found in the Trinity College Glee Club, which appeared at the Greensboro College for Women last night," says the Greensboro Daily News in reporting the appearance of Trinity's musical organization in that city. "The refreshingly youthful artists met with a strikingly enthusiastic audience, and evincing the commanding nature of the Glee Club and the pleasure the audience was deriving were the large number of encores, every number being recalled two or more times. Especially demanded for returns was made for the readings, the dramas, the quartet, and the stringed instrument. The entire program showed the results of skilled training, and, affording an evening of genuine amusement, evoked enthusiastic approval."

The Glee Club was given a six-dollar dinner as guests of the faculty, and immediately following the program, a reception was held in the college parlors. The trip was a success in every respect, not the least of which was the cordial

Last Thursday afternoon, the twenty-seven members of the Trinity Glee Club, architects and musician club, stepped off of train No. 80 and scattered themselves about in the various church towns of the Hill Country. While one or two could readily see the prospect on their faces which told a story of their own. This expression clearly demonstrated the true fact that they were tired and worn out but satisfied. They had expressions which plainly showed that the trip had been a success and that they were worthy of all credit the club would acquire during this present year and the years to come. Yes, the musical clubs' fall tour was a huge success. It would not be overrated when one pronounced it the best trip ever taken

TRINITY'S DEBATING RECORD

For the past five or six years Trinity College has experienced a wonderful success in Debating. As the record stands now, we have never lost a series of debates; and the scalps which hang at our belts now include such Colleges as Richmond, Emory, and Swarthmore. Our success this year is the same old story. A victory by a unanimous vote has been won here, at Swarthmore, and at Richmond; and we are anticipating a similar outcome of the debate with Emory. During the late part of last winter the Debate Council scheduled a contest with Harvard College, but for some reason the Harvard Council has found it necessary to cancel the agreement, much to our disappointment.

Indications now are that we shall have a good team next year, because a great many of the men debating this spring will return; therefore there is little reason for anyone to be anxious about the future. Trinity has always been right with the best when it comes to intercollegiate debating, and though we lose Harmon, Lefler, Grigg, Holton, and Fisher, we still will have Sprinkle, Small, Jackson, Herring, and Ware. Others to take places of the passing veterans are sure to turn up, and we may confidently expect that the debating record of Trinity in the future will be as brilliant and as glorious as it has been heretofore.

North Carolina

At noon the main at Hatteras is like a siren's smile,
And sea birds circle friendly in the sun;
But the waves turn bronze at sunset for many a rippling mile,
And skippers' ghosts come walking on the sands when day is done.

The grass-grown grave of Mitchell, beneath its scattered stones,
Is lonely on the mountain's highest crest;
But his spirit still is guardian of the monarch that it owns,
And the vandal hand of sacrilege cannot disturb its rest.

O sentinels of east and west, our miles that lie between
Are studded thick with hamlet, mead and home;
And Janus-like my love faces the sea's moon-silvered sheen,
And where a soul keeps vigil on a far, sky-reaching dome!

Alumni Poem

(Commencement, Trinity College, June 9, 1914)

By NEWMAN IVEY WHITE

You, who have fared across the heavy seas,
 You, who have felt the sting of salty spray,
 You, who have faced the sweep of mighty winds
 Across the lonely distances, once more
 You come to rest within the Mother Fort!

Aye, you have tales to tell!—a ringing tale
 Of high emprise, perhaps, in art's demesne;
 A tale of triumph in the streets of trade;
 A tale of humming industries that spring
 From mighty minds and capable, strong hands;
 A manly tale, a worthy and a fair,
 Of those who walk the little paths of life,
 With blythe, courageous footsteps swinging on;
 Of those who fought and fought and ever fought
 Against the odds of fortune, and who fell—
 Ah, fell, but with a spirit yet defiant!

But fealty deeds are their own best narrators,
 And all, today, within these campus gates,
 Are youths yet once again, with deeds undone,
 Youths in the glamor of a dream unlivid,
 Youths in the merry buoyancy of youth;
 And we who hear the daily symphonies
 Of trade and commerce, lusty-throated hymns
 From all the old Earth's laborers, would love
 To hear again a simple campus song,
 Singing the haunting melodies that thrill
 Unspoken, through our mellow campus lights.

There are lights upon the highways,
 Fairy lights upon the byways;
     There are lights within the arches of the skies;
 There are blinding lights of splendor,
 There are home lights gleaming tender,
     There are lights within a roguish lassie's eyes;

But its O for the campus lights aglisten, O for the campus lights aglow,
To stand in the shadows, and look, and listen, and breathe the magic of the thoughts that flow!

Here in the green of a light that's shaded, here in a driveway flooded white,
To smother the cares of a soul pervaded with all the sombreness of night!
Twinkle of dew where the lamplight greets it—gems from the court of Allahabad;
Golden earth where a stray gleam meets it—finer than gold that Croesus had!
Distant shadows that move uncertain, murmur of voices rising slurred—
And never a light from back of a curtain but breathes a romance yet unheard!
These are the lights of the future gleaming this is the light of a lord of trade;
That is the light of a great soul teeming with magic music yet unmade;
This is the light of a young Apollo, that is the light of a youthful Burke—
And all are the lights of the men that follow the Holy Grail of the great god work!

O lights of green and lights of yellow, merry and sad with the throbs of life,
Singing the dreams of the college fellow, singing the song of his battle strife,
You are the light of a human vision, you are the light of a star new-found—
You who have fashioned the fields Elysian out of the sky and the golden ground!

So it's campus lights of yellow

For the jolly college fellow,

With their merry, merry summons as they twinkle from afar;
Till the God of all Creation
Holds the last Examination,

And shows us what the true lights are!

The song is ended. Soon we all shall go
About the great world's business, and forget—
Or think that we forget—in serving Fact,
That ever Romance touched us on the sleeve,
And whispered youthful, fair imaginings
Until another June, with flaming skies,
And fields aflame with daisies, heart aflame
With tense unspoken poesy, will dawn,
And we shall feel the campus call again

For it's campus lights of yellow

For every college fellow

(Tis a happy, happy summons as they twinkle from afar!)
Till the God of all Creation
Holds his last Examination,

And—shows us what the true lights are!

A Flight at Dawn

By JOHN SMALL

(This poem first appeared in the Plane News, December 1918, the Air Service paper of the A. E. F.)

At that one stage of dawn
When Nature waits the morn,
The night wind dead,
And stars soon fled
And bitterest cold begun
Its challenge of the sun:
Then widens heaven's arc,
Yet leaves to us the dark—
The gaping hangars loose their prisoned wings;
Each motor sings.

Above, a hand of light
Collects delinquent night
Into a cloud—
A lacy shroud
Of rare Valenciennes—
First pallid gray, and then
Fast swept with morning's brush
That gives an opal flush—
A jewelled coronet to grace who roam
Its eastern home.

Across the field, crisp-white
Beneath its frost of night,
With speed
On speed
A gale like driven rain
Soon sets the mind aflame,
Drab earth-drawn visions change
For those of boundless range;
And I wing on in full security,
A heart made free.

While darkness flees below,
I mount the heightening glow
Of shadows won,
And greet the sun
A shock of ripened grain
As left upon some plain,
It reared its spreading head,
From which bright tapers fled
To kindle every unseen beacon light
That speeds the night

As if my plane they knew
To be a day-star too,
A truant light
In idle flight,
These couriers of dawn
With burnished-gold adorn
Till soon I seek the earth
And laugh with conscious mirth
At cheating Nature, as I watch ascend
The dawn again.

Away From Home and You

O, God shall guard the distance, dear,
That now between us lies
And shuts from me the warmth that fills
Your ravishing blue eyes.
While gentle stars are whispering
My dreams of love to you,
I fancy I can see the smile
That o'er your dimples flow.

I would I were the summer breeze
That plays about your cheek,
Or wandering silver beam that steals
Through half-closed lattice peak.
But when the morning comes, my dear,
And the earth smiles through the dew,
My glad steps shall be turning, love,
A-turning towards you.

The Little Clinging Bee

O let me sip the nectar
Like the butterfly and bee,
They from the rich red tulips,
I from the lips of thee.
The butterfly soon wearies
And wanders carelessly,
But I with quiet patience
Would linger like the bee.

And when like him I wander
To the hillside or the glen,
I find myself soon turning
To my rich red rose again.
The butterfly goes flirting
With the flowers, wild and free,
But close to thee I'd nestle
Like the little clinging bee.

THE DOPE SHOP

Shorty's Short Dissertation on the College Dope Shop

By BLANCHE BARRINGER

IT was just the annual convention of the College janitors of North Carolina. The representatives of Meredith, Greensboro College, Salem, Davidson and the University were there, and each had given at length the virtues and vices, the successes and failures of his respective college. And now it was Trinity's time to be extolled.

But who should be the speaker of the evening but Shorty, one of Trinity's best friends and standbys. As he took his stand on the platform, there was a twinkle in his eye which seemed to indicate that he had a real message for that renowned assembly. And what a message it was! Translated into the phraseology of English II, it ran something like this:

"Have you ever seen a real college 'dope shop'? Oh, you all may have two or three joints and miniature stores, but the question is: would you know a real dope shop if you saw one? Well, at any rate, I would like to give you an informal introduction to one.

"During the summer months of this year, 'our' Athletic Association, principally under the supervision of Professor Barnard, converted the basement of West Duke Building (now if you don't know it, that is the building where classes are held) into a modern and up-to-date drug store and 'dope shop' combined. A splendid soda fountain, attractive show cases, tables, and chairs gave it a most appealing appearance.

"But the appearance, as good as it may be, is but a minor thing when you compare it with the variety and the quality of articles which can be purchased there. Why, my friends, from hair-nets (both kinds like the co-eds wear) to all kinds of cosmetics necessary for the fairer sex; from wool hose to the latest English cut shoes; from 5c tablets to the highest class fraternity stationery; from Camel cigarettes to 25c cigars; and from dopes (with or without lemon) to Banana Splits and Boston Sandwiches, there is nothing in demand by the Trinity man or woman which this dope shop cannot supply.

"And, in conclusion, if any of you gentlemen here this evening wish to have the pleasure of seeing a miniature "Marshall-Fields," just pay me a visit, and I'll ask Mr. Barnard to show you the pride of the Athletic Association—better known as the Trinity College Dope Shop."

To a Lighthouse

By R. T. DUNSTAN, '21

(Body's Island Light from Nag's Head, N. C.)

When golden-rimmed, the sand dunes
At flaming sunset, glow,
And twilight hides the landmarks
The coasting sailors know,

Away o'er yon horizon
Your gleaming blinks at me
A-like the stars, yet brighter,
And flashes far to sea.

Above the surf, majestic,
Yet down the beach so far
A stranger's eye 'd think, maybe,
Your tiny spark a star!

Tho' with the dark appearing
'N your rays at morning die
You're not just like the others
That dot the nightly sky.

Without man's constant caring
Your cheery gleam soon dies.
Not theirs! For light celestial
His Hand to them supplies.

Your place is just a beacon
To send a warning glare,
But they to brighten Heaven
The Father spoke them there.

But yet to weary seamen
Indeed you are a star!
To guide their ships thru darkness
And safe o'er shoal and bar.

To the Hostess, at a Farewell Dinner

By NEWMAN IVEY WHITE

If I had the lives of the fabled cat
And the years of the phoenix bird,
And the lamp of Aladdin to tinker at
Whenever a craving stirred,

I'd spend my thousand years times nine
In sending my imps about
To fetch to me such a feast divine
As that which is here laid out;

But though they brought me Arab cates
And dripping honeycomb,
And peacock tongues and Syrian dates
And lampreys out of Rome,

I'd send them back with a stern command
To fetch our hostess to me,
And if they failed I'd understand
That the game was up—Beshrew me

If I wouldn't wish just once and then
I'd break that lamp in two
I'd wish to be back here again,
And die when we were through!

My Twentieth Birthday

By W. C. MERRITT, '21

The wings of time have picked me up,
 And taken me away;
 From happy days of teens
 Up to my twentieth birthday;
 And though it seems but yesterday
 When I was but sixteen,
 In spite of fleeting time I'll try—
 To keep myself serene.

Now twenty years of age, I ask,
 "What vic'tries have I won?"
 It seems to me within these years
 There's little I have done;
 But these years can't be lived again,
 Why sit I here aghast?
 The future have I yet to live,
 I cannot change the past.

So—should my life extended be
 Another twenty years,
 I'd want to know more good I'd done
 Within this "veil of tears."
 Then urging on with fortitude
 I'll do what bit I can,
 To help the world by raising up
 My fallen fellowman.

The Faded Dream

By R. T. DUNSTAN, '21

As I lie awake and weary
 In the lonely dread of night
 When the rest are gone to sleeping
 And to peaceful dreams and bright,
 Comes a-streaming through my window
 From the wan and waning moon
 Dim and ghostly rays and shadows,
 And the night-wind's plaintive croon.

Sends me back in memory flitting
 And a whisper soft I hear
 . . . . Then the shadows seem within me!
 Ah, a crushing pang is there!
 And a burning, wistful longing's
 Just a-gnawing at my soul.
 For a dream of youth is faded!
 There's a heart I've loved grown cold!

Pal O' Mine

By W. C. MERRITT, '21

Oftentimes I lie a-dreaming, pal o' mine—
When in heaven the stars are gleaming so divine;
Frequently my mem'ry sways
To those happy bygone days
When I loved your charming ways
Dear pal o' mine.

Oft in dreams it seems you're near me, pal o' mine,
For just you alone can cheer me when I pine;
If my dreams could all come true,
I would ne'er again be blue,
For each night I dream of you
Dear pal o' mine.

Life would be a golden fancy, pal o' mine
If I knew you really longed for me sometime.
When in dreams your face I see
There's a question comes to me—
If you'd really like to be
A pal o' mine.

The central graphic is a large diamond shape with a thick black border. Inside, there are 12 circular portraits of young men in suits, arranged in a triangular pattern. In the center of the diamond is a logo consisting of a circle with a triangle inside, and below it, the Greek letters Δ Σ Φ. Above the letters is a crown-like symbol. At the bottom of the diamond, there are two pyramids. The entire graphic is set against a background of faint, repeating patterns.

Dear little girl, you are still in my dreams,
 I'll never forget the quarrel it seems
     And the day that the pin was returned.
 But I light up my pipe, drawing pictures in smoke,
 And I wonder just who got the best of the joke,
     As your likeness in embers is burned
 For I think of your smiles and your frocks and your frills
 And your hard-working husband, footing the bills.

Come Greet the Dawn!

By JOHN SMALL

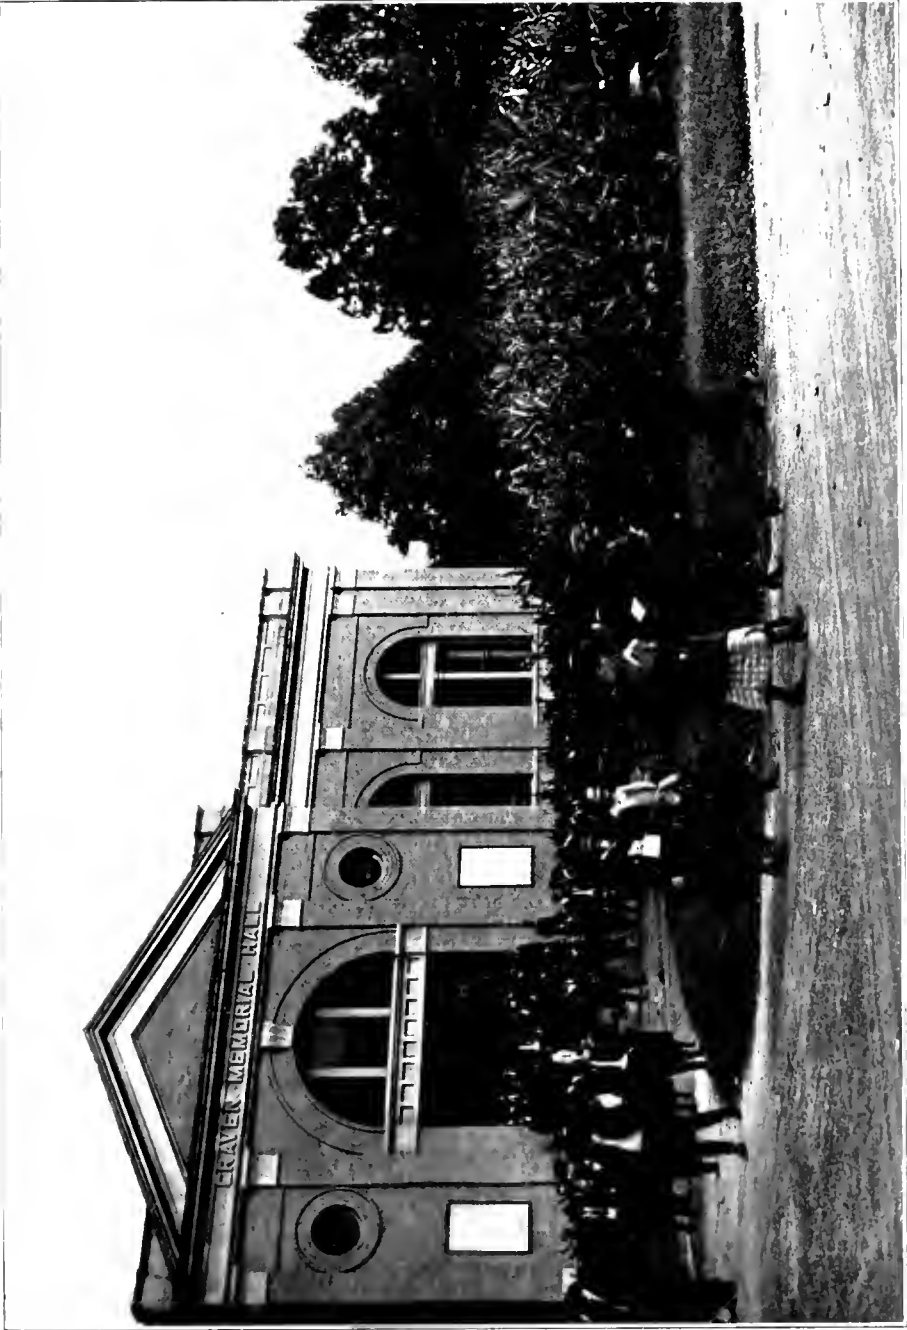

Come greet the dawn! Come greet the dawn!
 Come greet the dormant princess, Morn,
 Whom soon a jealous, wakeful day
 Will rouse and quickly speed away.

Come greet the joyous dawn alone
 With me from the aerial throne
 Of clouds which breaking mists have spun
 To crown the Morn when night is won.

Come speed your flight for dawn is near,
 Her silent couriers are here,
 And earth no moment will arrest
 Her hand for the delinquent guest.

The dawn is come; we are much spent
 And yet have gained our high intent
 The cleansing beauty of the Morn
 Gives joy to life when joy is gone.

The Lake and—Just We Two

By W. C. MERRITT, '21

Of all the work of Nature's hand
 That helps to drive life's cares away
 Sure none affords more pleasure than
 A peaceful lake in early May.

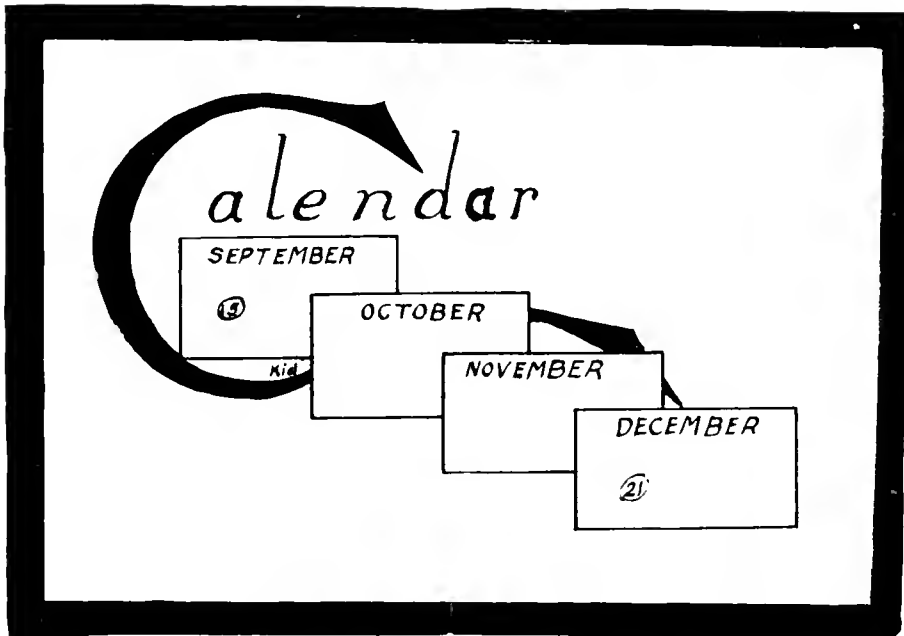

A friend of mine with me one day
 Stood looking out across the lake;
 The trees that stood across the way
 Had grown up there for beauty's sake

The woods full green stretched all around
 Affording shade up near the shore,
 The lake, with beautiful background,
 Seemed to allure me more and more

So—as I took my friend by hand,
 I helped her in a small canoe,
 And with my oar shoved off the sand,
 Then we went boating—just we two

His Highest Ambition

GILBERT E. POWELL

A Bull Feast was in session. The place of the meeting was up in Cat's Head, that famous and notorious scene of Bull Artists' Conventions since way back yonder before Woman Suffrage, the influx of the feminines, and the formation of Sachet-brigades had converted our many institutions into a garden of love sighs, a conglomeration of lace, frills, pink tea parties, social satellites, chiclet chewers and dope fiends. Now this was not an ordinary, every-day-and-night sorta Bull Feast, for the boys were not telling jokes, boning for an exam, or raking the Dean over the burning coals of a student's wrathful contempt. It was an unusual session. There was no disorder or confusion—no simultaneous wiggling of boisterously discordant tongues. Instead, there was an ordinary discussion in progress. Only four men were present—two upperclassmen, one freshman, and one first year law student. And the question was: "What is my highest ambition?"

The Freshman's turn came first. "Gentlemen," said he, "as doubtless all of you know, I have musical tendencies. My fathers had them before me. One of my ancestors, coming over on the Mayflower, could play the Jew's harp so well that favorable winds attended the ship just to catch the rhythmic strains which emanated from that simple mouthpiece. And when the Pilgrims landed, the Indians who came to massacre were forced to dance themselves to death under the spell of my ancestor's masterful touch. A great uncle of mine, who was one of three, came into the world singing 'We Are Three Jolly Good Fellows'. One of my aunts cut her teeth on an ocarina; my grandfather was always fond of drumsticks; and my cousin died from the effects of a song—he was a bachelor, rather nervous and inflammable, and had a room next to an old maid who was taking voice. So you see gentlemen, it's a plain case of inherited ability, and I earnestly trust that I shall not incur the indignation of this assembled body when I state that the greatest desire of my life is to be a wonderful singer. I don't mean a measly, mediocre, two-by-four squabber; I mean a songster of some force and power—one who can outmock the mockingbird, outquestion the owl, and out-night the nightingale. I want my vocal organs to be so euphoniously tuned that when I speak there will be a melodious rhythm to my every utterance—an entrancing harmony in my very breathing, and when I open my mouth and actually let loose, the birds in heaven will cease to chirp in order to listen, the barnyard duck desist from its discordant quack, and the victrola playing a Caruso record will automatically stop and hang its crank in shame. In other words, gentlemen, I want to be a singer of such unexcelled excellency that I can play on the feelings of my hearers like David played on the harp of a thousand strings, can draw rosin out of an oak plank, and even touch the cold, stern heart of a college professor! Then, may-haps, I can talk to the spirits in Paradise, for Carlyle says that music is the speech of the angels."

The first upperclassman's turn came next. "My friends," said he, "if you will pardon the material viewpoint from which I have regarded this question, the height of my ambition is to be a shirt manufacturer—that is, the manufacturer of a shirt after my own liking. Now ever since the first few days of my tender infancy up to my present state of mental confusion and co-ed inclinations I've been shirted in some form or other—night—, under— or top-shirted—and in all that lengthy period of garbed existence I have never owned or seen a shirt which possessed all the qualities that I thought a real shirt ought to have. They were all too gaudy or too plain—too big or too little—the collar-band too large or too tight—the sleeves too long or too short and puckered where they joined the body—the cuffs wore out too easily—the buttonholes always too large—the buttons never would stay on—and besides all that, the tail was forever coming out. Now my idea is to manufacture a shirt which rectifies all these wrongs and strengthens all these weaknesses. I'll have the colors blending so harmoniously they will be a joy to the eyesight, an elastic collar-band that will fit any neck, the sleeves just right, the cuffs made of a durable substance which will never wear out, the buttons fastened so securely that a tug-of-war could not pull them loose, and the tail fashioned so skillfully to fit that portion of the anatomy which it covers that it will never come out unless such be the willful intent of the wearer and a definite motion made by him to bring out such ends. To be the maker and manufacturer of a shirt like this, gentlemen, is my greatest ambition on earth!"

The second upper-classman came third. "Gentlemen," said he, "I'm a man of lowly origin. I was raised in the backwoods on a small farm. My only companions were the family billy-goat, a one-eyed guinea, a possum dog, and a freckled face chum. Consequently, gentlemen, I crave social distinction. I have an unquenchable desire to ride in soft-cushioned limousines, to domicile in a palatial residence, to lead a lazy, luxurious existence with a host of butlers, maids, valets, and attendants to provide for my every wish, to be the height of fashion, to the setter of styles, to become the leading member as exclusive as a peacock's aristocratic society in a community of ducks and common barnyard fowls, and wherever I make my appearance to have all men gaze in envious awe upon my well-gowned Apollonic form and whisper to their friends: 'Behold, the Social King!' Then and then only, gentlemen, will I have attained my heart's greatest desire."

The remaining member of this unusual Bull Feast, a rather youthful student of law, had listened attentively to the foregoing discussion, and now it was his turn. "Boys," said he, "music appeals to me about as much as a silk kimona sale appeals to a poverty-stricken Eskimo living under the shadow of the North Pole. And I am as little concerned over the manufacture of shirts and the fashioning of shirt-tails as the grinning baboons in the wilds of Africa are concerned over the perfection of the League of Nations. And as for society, I'd rather be the simplest savage on some desolate isle with only a string of straw around my waist and a jug of good liquor in my arms than to mount the highest pinnacles of social attainment and have all the clothes, all the servants, all the fine automobiles, all the social honors, courtesies, and red tape that a fashion-mad world can furnish. But since my arrival on the park, I've seen and heard many things—some have appealed to me, some I have regarded as useless, yet amongst them all I have fashioned my ideal—have found my supreme aim in life. And here it is: If I could tell a joke like Dean Mordecai, chew tobacco like Daddy-Pomp-Legs, cuss like O. T., and be as important as John Love, my dream would be realized—I would have reached the height of my ambition!"

The Possibilities of an Hour

By HELEN McCrARY

THE tall grandfather clock struck twelve. I watched the dying embers in the open grate, and lazily wondered why the witching hour of Christmas Eve was no longer the hour of miracles.

Suddenly I heard a gentle tapping upon the window-pane. I opened the window, and in flew a winged messenger-boy. Imagine my shocked surprise when I discovered that my visitor was not Mercury, as I had at first supposed, but our highly respected Greek professor, Dr. Peppler.

"Put on these wings and follow me," he commanded tersely as he handed me a pair of feathery green wings similar to his own.

It is needless to say that I was no longer in a state of innocuous desuetude. In dazed stupefaction I obeyed his orders, and after a speedy flight through the biting cold atmosphere, I found myself following my guide into a large and brilliantly lighted church.

Surely this was a great occasion to which I had been so unexpectedly summoned. Everywhere were bright lights, beautiful flowers, and richly clad men and women. In the midst of so much elegance I felt hopelessly insignificant, and gladly took one of the few unoccupied seats in the back of the church.

Then softly, sweetly the great church organ began to play. A fair damsel arose from her seat in the choir and warbled forth the soul inspiring wedding song, "I Love You Truly, Truly Dear." The beautiful singer—no, my reeling brain had not deceived me—was Professor Frederick Cowper!

And then the music changed. I heard the deep, solemn strains of "Mendelssohn's Wedding March", and a worthy minister slowly approached the chancel. The Reverend Dr. Mordecai, for so the holy clergyman proved to be, quietly took his stand at the altar and waited for the other actors in the drama of "For Better or for Worse" to appear upon the scene.

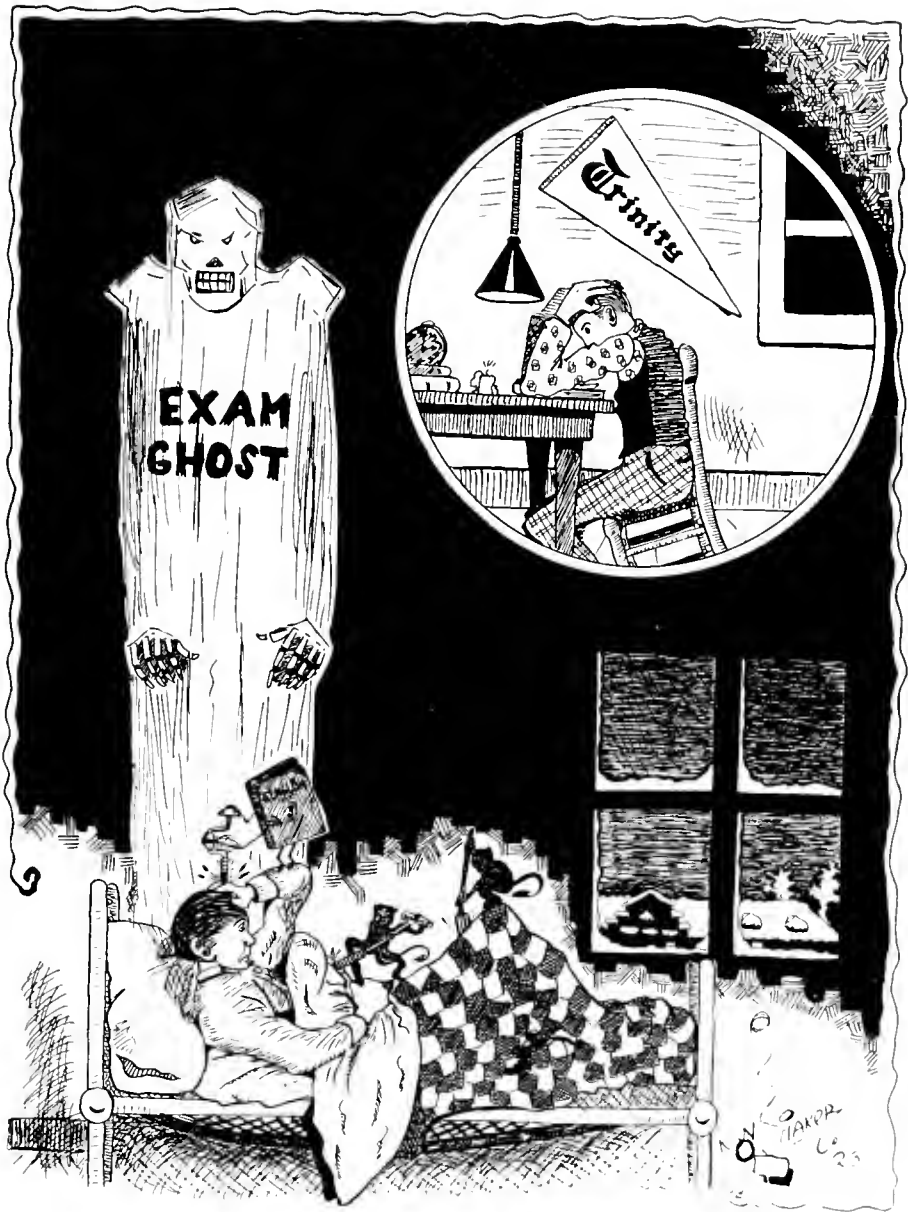

Then slowly but surely the actors began their perilous journey down the flower strewn aisles. First came the handsome ushers, William Cranford and Arthur Gates. Immediately following them were Tommie LalPrade and Albert Webb, making in their decollette evening gowns of orchid pink satin the most beautiful bridesmaids one could conceive. Then the flower girls, Willie Wannamaker and

Leslie Lowry, looking like pink and white fairies in their pink socks and white dresses lightly tripped to the altar and stood on either side of the bridesmaids.

"What a captivating ring-bearer!" I involuntarily exclaimed as a tall lithe-some form glided to the altar. In fact, I had never before seen Billy Few so winsomely sweet, so charmingly boyish as he looked at this particular moment. In his hand he bore a snow-white lily, —and in the lily was that glittering emblem of conjugal joy, the wedding ring

The lofty strains of the wedding march swept triumphantly onward. The vast assembly of spectators sat as if spellbound. Only an occasional gurgling from one of the flower girls testified that life still animated the admiring multitude.

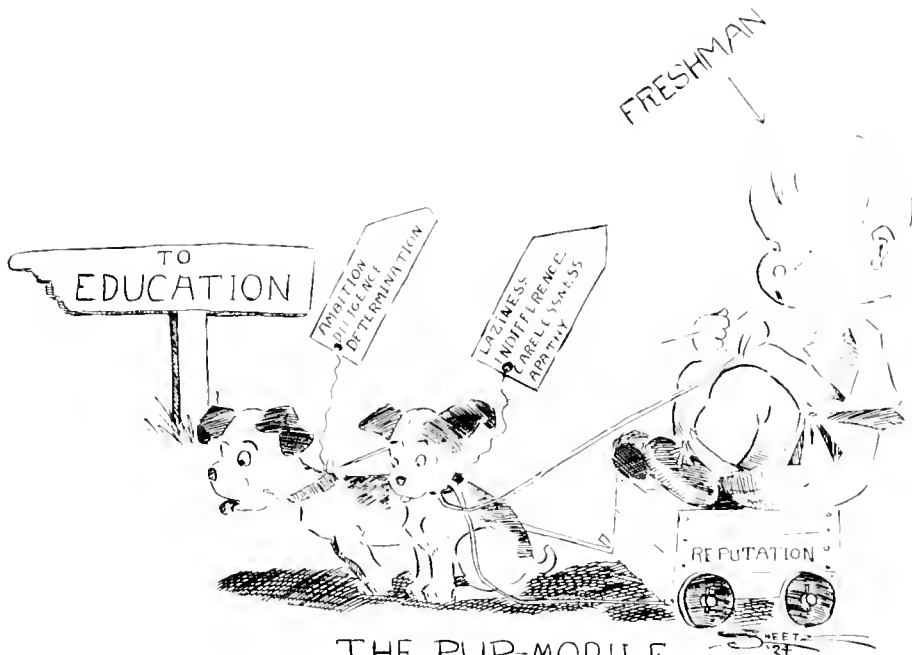

Slowly, self-surrenderingly, the groom, supported by the groomsman, sauntered down the aisle. I immediately recognized the pale lineaments of the groom to be none other than those of Ni White, while the relief worker at his side was unmistakably Hershey Spence.

Following this distinguished pair came the bride and her father. Never had I beheld a more ethereal vision of loveliness than was Shirley Graves upon this momentous night. Like a clinging vine against a rugged oak she now supported herself by the stalwart arm of her father, Dr. W. K. Boyd. Her white veil, extending as far as a mortal eye could reach, was only one of her beautiful bridal accessories.

But why attempt with my feeble pen to do justice to such an inspiring scene? Let us hence to the altar!

The bride and the groom knelt at the chancel, Reverend Mordecai opened his book of fatality, and began his solemn intonations. It was then that my heart was filled with acute terror. Before my very eyes, those two beings, most beloved by the co-eds of Trinity College were being united in bonds of holy wedlock. Thus, at "one fell swoop" the ardent aspirations and burning desires of Fraushackism were being leveled to the ground while I, a helpless co-ed must sit passively by and submit to the inevitable.

It was at this instant that a mighty roaring, as of many cannon, smote my frenzied ears. Delighted by any interruption in the destructive scene before me, I turned around just in time to see Miss Shorty Love, in the capacity of a nurse maid, entering the church. In her arms she bore the baby of the faculty, James Cannon, III, who evidently did not approve of weddings. With two healthy legs he pawed the offending atmosphere while his voice was lifted in a roaring, screaming medley of noises, previously alluded to as "cannon-like". Ah, Jimmie Cannon, perverter of evil, savior of the co-eds!

THE PUP-MOBILE

Did the wedding continue? The reverend minister could no more compete with the lusty infant than could a warbling thrush be heard when Farrington begins his melodies.

The wedding was over. Danger seemed now to have gained a lasting triumph over love. The bride, forgetful of her maidenly composure, angrily shook both fists at her intended spouse; the audience, undecided as to what its conduct should be under such trying circumstances, seemed to agree that a hand-to-hand fight would be most fitting.

At this critical moment I felt a nudge against my shoulder. Again Dr. Mercury Pepler handed me a pair of green wings.

"Let's beat it!" he urged

Out, out, into the cold night air we flew. One backward glance sufficed to show me that matters were no better. Even Reverend Mordecai seemed engaged in warlike activities and was vigorously spanking the shrieking Jimmie.

The great-grandfather clock struck one. The magic hour of Christmas Eve had past. By the last flickering spark in the grate I could see that I was alone. Only a tiny green feather at my feet remained to give reality to my strange journey.

Courting at Ye Old Fraushack

By G. E. POWELL

Now in that day there dwelt in the hall of Jarvis a neophite of great greenness, who, waxing weary of cramming his meagre dome with mighty morsels of much learning, did rise from his seat, slam down his book, and exclaim with great noise. "It's up! Spluttering sky-rockets, it's up!" "What's up?" questioned his roommate. "The devil's up", quoth the neophite. "Then sit ye down again," said his roommate and continued perusing Snappy Stories with much ardor. Whereupon the neophite waxed exceeding profane and did pollute the air with divers and sundry oaths of great weight, which caused the windows to rattle and the very walls themselves to shake. "Go to", quoth he. "I shall forsake the thorny paths of Bull Brown's English and hie myself to Fraushack, to gaze with rapture upon the fair inmates domiciled therein, and relieve my pent-up soul of many spoony expressions which heave my love-sick frame."

And it was even so. Our neophite fared forth to Fraushack.

"Ah, my brave one, thou hast come at last!" cried the soft little thing that fluttered down to greet him.

"What thou sayest is true", quoth the neophite. "I have come at last, but who knoweth how long I shall last?"

"And, Oh dear, I have been worried about thee!" continued the delicate darling dramatically.

"And, prithee, why worried, my love?" quoth the neophite.

"News did reach mine ears that thou wert in a rude broil down in Ye Goodie Shop and wert shot," quoth she.

"Nay, nay, not shot, my dainty dove," crooned the neophite. "Only half shot."

"But thou art here, light of my life," cooed the female co-ed. "There is a question of great moment I fain would ask thee".

"Ask on", invited our neophite boldly.

"Tell me and tell me truthfully", breathlessly breathed the lipping lady, "art my lips on straight?"

"Ah," quoth the neophite, "thou askest me a jolly good question. I believe I have touched upon the subject before. Draw yet a little nearer, and I shall tell thee."

"Stop!" cried the lady in great terror. "Thou hast gone too far—come closer!"

"Now, now, my gentle queen," soothed our neophite, caressing her pearly little paw with much tenderness.

"How dare you! Cease!" exclaimed the blushing dame. "I like it."

Whereupon our neophite besat himself by the side of the charming miss, and made bombastic love and did heave great sighs and sweetened the air with many honeyed phrases.

FRAUSHACK ROMANCE

"My love for thee", quoth the neophyte, "is like the love of a hungry June-bug for a ripe, juicy fig in the warm summer season. I pine for thee like the pine tree pines for gentle zephyrs in the springtime. Whenever mine eyes meet those luminous orbs of thine, my heart beateth with such rapidity that the buttons on my vest fly thither into space; my soul bubbleth over within me. I feel as holy as a doughnut—shaky as a bell cord in a Norfolk and Southern shu-fly, and I fain would caress thee like a drowning gnat caresseth a straw in a bowl of buttermilk—fain would bear thee away to my castle of dreams to be its queen throughout the cons of God's great eternity! When first I looked upon thee, 'verily', thought I, 'the angels art having a recess in heaven, and this is a divine creature fresh from the portals of Paradise.'"

"And why dost thou love me?" coquettishly questioned the soft thing.

"Why?" repeated the lover in surprise. "Why? Thou mightest as well ask why the fire-fly carrieth his lantern behind, why the birds sing or why the students drink dopes, why the moon appeals to lovers or why Freshmen flunk their quizzes, why owls are wise or why Crip Ware is otherwise, why a toad-frog hops or why girls say stop when they mean keep on. There is no reason—just as there is no reason for Tub Taylor or chaperones or Chapel exercises. Love is not based on reason, for then few of us would ever love—surely not I.”

Just then the lights flickered out, leaving the Shack in temporary darkness.

“Shocked!” cried the neophyte, who, reaching for the switch, had touched a live wire.

“Shocked!” echoed the dainty darling, sitting by the side of our neophyte.

“Oh dear, oh dear, I didn’t think it of thee!” sobbed the tender creature with crimson cheek.

“Shock me again, love, before the lights come on!”

And our neophyte, being nothing loath, did seize the golden opportunity, then sighed and returned to the hall of Jarvis. But he had made a good impression, which long lingered in the memory and upon the lipping lips of the coy little co-ed.

Love in a tub
May be all right ;
But love of a tub
Is my heart's delight.

—Helen McCrary

It is high time for pessimists to take warning. It was only a few days ago that a startling bit of philosophy, psychology—call it what you will—was noticed in a member of our Freshman class.

It came to pass in a conversation between Mr. Everett Stevens and Mr. Roy McNairy, just after the last named gentleman, who was in an experimental frame of mind, had pulled the plug out of a radiator, thus allowing live steam to burst forth suddenly with furious energy. Whereupon Mr. Stevens, having the best interest of Mr. McNairy at heart, addressed him as follows:

“You'd better watch yourself, Roy. I got scalded that way once.”

To which Mr. McNairy replied,

“Oh, that's all right. I never have.”

There was an old lady from Fife
Who had never been kissed in her life ;
Along came a cat—
She said, “I'll kiss that ”
But the cat said, “Not on your life.”

—Old Ballad

"He's dead—he's dead! O T. is dead!"
 The Freshman screamed and holloa'd
 "What's that—what's that?" the boys all said,
 And all in terror followed.

"There's some mistake—it cannot be!"
 Exclaimed they all together,
 "That one so stout and staunch as he Should perish in such weather."

They found him a darkened way,
 And each did take a peep.
 Alone, outstretched, and limp he lay—
 And dead?—yes, dead asleep.

As Trinity Used to Be

(Editor's Note—These are extracts taken verbatim from the different publications of Trinity College for the year 1875-1876)

---

Time of Entering: The Session begins on Tuesday. All should be present on that day. Great damage is done by delay.

—Trinity Catalogue, 1875-'76

Location Trinity is in the North-west corner of Randolph County, five miles from High Point on the North Carolina Railroad. The College hack runs to and from the College twice daily. We have all the facilities of the railroad without its annoyance.

—Trinity Catalogue, 1875-'76

Rule No. 4. No student is permitted to have in his possession at College any pistol, gun or other weapon, to play any game of chance, to drink any intoxicating liquors, or to use profane language.

—College Laws, 1875-'76

Rule No. 6: No student may, under any circumstances, make an account at any store or shop without the permission of the President.

—College Laws, 1875-'76

Examinations: There are thorough examinations at the end of each grade. None may avoid them. The examinations are sufficiently comprehensive and difficult.

—College Laws, 1875-'76

Locals: The College Janitor was sick a few days with the grippe, during which time his substitute rang the bell more by guess than by his watch.

—The Archive, 1890

Locals: Two young gallants walked to High Point one afternoon and hired a horse and buggy to go five miles to call on some young ladies; returning that night, they left the conveyance at High Point and footed it back to Trinity. This is a specimen of the rigid economy practiced by school boys.

—The Archive, 1890

Locals: Friday night before the boys left for their homes for the holidays, quite a number of well-meaning young men, having serenaded President Crowell with the singing of that very appropriate hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again", proceeded to serenade the Professors in the same way. They were kindly received by all of them, several showing their appreciation by appropriate words of greeting and thanks and the occasion would have been a pleasant one to the boys, but for an occurrence which justly aroused their righteous indignation. While they were at the window of a Professor, singing their parting song, someone was cruel-hearted enough to throw water on them from above. This act alone furnishes us the yardstick by which to measure the man who did it, and it would not be exaggerating to say that he is wanting. We are glad to add that this was not one of the Professor's family, neither was it a regular College student.

—The Archive, 1890

It is said that at one time in the history of Trinity College a worthy gentleman who had a son then a student here, decided that his boy was spending too much money; therefore he decided that he must effect a change in his son's system of finances, and he told the young man during the Christmas holidays that an understanding was necessary.

"Now son," said the old gentleman, "I am going to put three hundred dollars in the bank to your credit. You will make a similar entry on one page of a book which I shall give you and on the opposite page you will put down how the money got away from you."

Three Hundred Thirty-four

At the end of January the father paid his son a visit, and announced that he would audit the account book. One entry was made on the deposit sheet: Received from father, $300. On the other was written the very plausible statement: Spent it all.

Oh, who is that clown
 With his head hanging down
 And his nose almost touching the earth,
 With his arms swinging wild
 Like an awkward child
 And never a sign of mirth?

You shouldn't talk so,
 But you ought to know,
 You poor little ignorant sap,
 For that's not a clown
 With his head hanging down
 Why, that's our old Prof. Lap!

He that knows not and knows not that he knows not is a Freshman,—Pity him.
 He that knows not and knows that he knows not is a Sophomore,—Avoid him.
 He that knows and knows not that he knows is a Junior,—Teach him
 He that knows and knows that he knows is a Senior,—FOLLOW HIM

There was a young lady from Siam
Who said to a young man named Kiam,
"If you kiss me, of course,
You will have to use force;
But God knows you're stronger than I am."

To Trinity College Students

IN a time like we are passing through now, when money is scarce and when everyone, most especially a merchant, feels that he must cut overhead expenses, there is no better way for a person to find out just who is a strong friend indeed of the Trinity body, than for that person to pick up an Annual and run his eyes over the advertisers. These men have given us their support, although a great many feel that we might have supported them better than we have heretofore, and in behalf of the College publications, the CHANTICLEER Staff urges all Trinity men to take note of the firms who have demonstrated their loyalty to us this year. May they find that they were doing no charity work when they gave us their advertisements.
